BRAIN X-RAYS GIVE NEW HOPE FOR DOOMED BABY

Plea to Doctors; Parents Ban Knife

CHICAGO, May 7—A faint ray of hope shone on the blackened horizon of two agonizing young parents here today, after they had decided against an operation which would take their infant daughter's sight forever, but perhaps save its life.

Possibility that ultra-high voltage X-ray treatments might halt the terrible progress of the tumor creeping toward the five-weeks-old girl's brain was held out this morning.

Earlier, an unprecedented appeal to the nation's entire medical profession was made.

Dr. Morris Hershman, a physician and maternal grandfather of the ill-fated baby, Helaine Colan, declared:

"Somewhere in the United States, perhaps in some small village or city, there may be a physician who has had experience with a case like this and obtained favorable results.

"If there is such a doctor—anywhere—we would welcome a communication from him."

Closeted in their apartment the parents, Dr. Herman Colan, 30, a dentist, and his wife, Estelle, 23. They were spending hours of unimaginable agony.

Italian Envoy Hits Blast by Woodring

Italian Ambassador Fulvio Suvich arrived in Boston today and in an interview struck back at the recent warning of Secretary of War Woodring that Fascist aggression must stop.

"I think here in America they don't understand the position of Italy," the Italian diplomat declared in his suite at the Hotel Copley Plaza shortly after his arrival.

ANSWERS WOODRING

"Americans have a misunderstanding and wrong interpretation of the Italian situation and of the Fascist government."

Accompanied by his wife, Ambassador Suvich arrived at Back Bay station to be greeted by a group of Italo-Americans led by Guido Segre, Italian consul-general of Boston.

The ambassador and his wife plan to spend three busy days in Boston.

Answering Secretary Woodring's attack on Italy's intervention in the Spanish civil war, the ambassador declared:

"The only interest of the Ital-

Goga, Rumanian Foe of Jews, Dies

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 7 (AP)—Octavian Goga, 57, who headed a nationalist, anti-Semitic Rumanian government for a few turbulent weeks early this year, died today.

Goga, who suffered a heart ailment after his resignation as premier, February 10, had a stroke this week.

King Carol commissioned Goga to form a new government December 28, 1937. In the six weeks that it lasted, his administration imposed drastic strictures on Jews and laid the basis for a broad anti-Semitic and Fascist program.

Girl Beaten, Robbed By Masked Gunman

Dorothy Greer, 20, of 10 Verrill street, Dorchester, was robbed and beaten today by an armed bandit, who felled her in a Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, cleansing shop.

The girl, a clerk, turned over the contents of the cash register, $3, on the demand of a gunman about 25 years old. He wore a blue handkerchief for a mask and carried a nickel-plated revolver.

Ordered into the rear room, the girl was slugged in a furious struggle as she fought off the attacker. Frightened by her screams, he fled out a rear door.

Miss Greer was taken by police to a doctor's office. She described the assailant as 5 feet 6 inches tall and 150 pounds in weight. He wore dungarees and a brown suede jacket.

Pressure Put on Hitler

Warned 'Go Slow' With Czech Plans

LONDON, May 7 (INS)—In an effort to prevent the Czechoslovakian minority question from flaring into a conflagration, Great Britain and France brought pressure to bear on Germany and Czechoslovakia today.

British and French envoys to Berlin and Prague visited the respective foreign offices in a joint demarche and urged extreme moderation in dealing with the issue.

Both countries were warned of the grave consequences that might follow a clash in central Europe and were asked to adopt a conciliatory attitude.

BRITIAN SEES CRISIS

British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson was instructed to inform Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in Berlin that:

1—Britain urgently counsels German moderation in dealings with the Czech regime.

2—Britain and France are both pressing Prague make all possible concessions to the Sudeten Germans.

3—Britain believes the central European situation is growing worse and therefore is endangering prospects of improved relations between London and Berlin.

STATE WITHIN STATE

London and Paris proposed that Czech concessions to the Sudetens be made within the framework of a state composed of federated localities, as in Switzerland.

Under this plan, German and other minorities in Czechoslovakia would get local self-government without impairing Czech national sovereignty.

MAY LIFT WOODS BAN

CONCORD, N. H., May 7 (AP)—State forestry and game officials today conferred on the possibility of suspending a ban closing all woodlands. Heavy rains in some sections had reduced hazards of forest fires.

Hoare Warns Dictators

BLACKPOOL, England, May 7 (AP)—Sir Samuel Hoare served notice on dictators today he believed democracies will flourish by the side of the "juggernaut machines," if democratic peoples face facts.

The meticulous home secretary, in a speech to a Rotary International Club conference, at the same time declared democracies never could countenance for themselves the anti-Semitism of the "German dictator" or the "Russian dictator's" distinctions between rich and poor.

Without mentioning Italy, he made a strong plea for "good companionship" among nations and said this was the root of British foreign policy.

This foreign policy in the hands of Prime Minister Chamberlain has effected an Anglo-Italian agreement and is seeking further appeasement at the German end of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Sir Samuel said that "neighborliness" was the first duty of democracy, adding that the "Russian dictator (Stalin) would restrict it to neighbors of his own class, the so-called proletariat" and "the German dictator (Hitler) would confine it to neighbors of his own Aryan race."

Duce Gives Hitler Free Czech Hand

ROME, May 7 (AP)—Premier Mussolini, according to German sources, has agreed to give Germany a free hand in Czechoslovakia, so far as Italy is concerned.

Mussolini was said to have promised, during a conversation last night with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, to bring diplomatic pressure to bear upon the Czechoslovak government to be "reasonable" in meeting German demands.

The German sources said Mussolini agreed that Italy was a disinterested party in Czechoslovakia, and that the Sudeten German problem was one which concerned only the Germans and Czechoslovakia.

After the dictators had talked in private for an hour, German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, and Italy's Count Ciano, were called in and conversations continued for another hour.

WANTS "BIG 4"

Mussolini's pet project—rejuvenation of a four-power pact—was reported to have been the chief topic.

Hitler left no doubt, it was said, that he considered it essential that Italo-French and German-British understandings precede such an agreement.

Rain washed out the big air and artillery show planned today for Hitler, making tonight's state dinner the high spot of the day.

Ironing out French and Italian differences—a project interrupted by Hitler's visit—would take at least a year, German spokesmen believe, and conversations between Britain and Germany might require even more time.

Questioned as to Poland's desire to be in on a pact of the major powers, the spokesman counter-questioned:

"Didn't you notice that Mussolini did not invite the Poles to be at the railway station when Hitler arrived?"

Hitler came to Rome Tuesday and has sandwiched conversations with Mussolini in between demonstrations in his honor. Rain today gave the guest and host much more time together than they had expected.

The downpour washed out a big air and artillery show and left tonight's state dinner at Palazzo Venezia the high spot of the day's program.

The question of Trieste, the former Austrian Adriatic port won by Italy in the World War settlement, was said to be one of the topics reserved for detailed discussion today.

HITLER SEES VATICAN

(With Austria now within the German fold it was possible Hitler wished to recover Trieste as a foothold on the Mediterranean—or at least obtain Italian concession of port rights.)

German spokesmen already have indicated Hitler has promised to direct Austrian German goods under preferential freight rates to Trieste just as though there had been no Anschluss.

Both Italian and German spokesmen agreed in a prediction that political discussions between Hitler and Mussolini would end today.

A morning drive gave Hitler his first view of Vatican City from which emanates one of his chief internal problems—relations of the Nazi regime with the Catholic church.

From his car Hitler could see the windows of Pope Pius' private apartments, untenanted since the Pope departed for his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo three days before Hitler's coming.

Hull Firm on Spain Embargo

WASHINGTON, May 7 (INS)—In the face of battering pressure from the most highly organized propaganda campaign since Germany and Britain sought to gain America as an ally in the World War Secretary of State Hull will tell Congress it is against the best interests of the United States to lift the arms embargo against Spain.

This was learned exclusively by International News Service today as a bloc in Congress sought desperately to force a vote on the Nye resolution asking war supplies be made available to the Spanish government.

Hull's unqualified opposition is being communicated to President Roosevelt and will be transmitted to Congress next week.

Japs Face Annihilation In Town Near Shanghai

SHANGHAI, May 7 (AP)—Three thousand Chinese guerrilla troops, fighting recklessly in Nantungchow, threatened today to annihilate the Japanese garrison of that supply base, which is on the Yangtze, 60 miles north of Shanghai.

Japanese reinforcements were rushed from Shanghai in a desperate effort to save the decimated garrison.

FIGHT FOR LIVES

The loss of Nantungchow would cut supply and communication lines serving a Japanese army of 10,000 men operating in North Kiangsu province. This army was last reported 60 miles south of the Lunghai railway.

Foreigners from Yangtze ports said scores of Chinese civilians had been killed and hundreds were hiding in terror while hand-to-hand fighting raged inside the walls of Nantungchow.

The Chinese guerrillas infiltrated Nantungchow three days ago and attacked by surprise, inflicting many casualties upon the Japanese garrison, which numbered only 300 men at the outset. Remnants of the garrison were last reported fighting for their lives.

The only foreigner there was Miss V. Mushrush, American nurse attached to the United Christian Missionary Society Hospital.

Operation Banned By Baby's Parents

CHICAGO, May 7 (INS)—A young father and mother decided today they would rather see their baby die than live and be blind for life.

As far as it was possible for them to know their own minds under the stress of those terrible alternatives, Dr. and Mrs. Herman Colan, parents of five-weeks-old Helaine Judith Colan, were sure they did not wish the little girl's eyes to be taken out as a means of checking a malignant tumor known as glioma.

Doctors have said removal of the infant's eyes was the sole method of preventing death within eight weeks, by which time the tumor will have extended its tentacles to the brain.

MAY CHANGE MINDS

At the same time Dr. Morris Hershman, the baby's grandfather, who was the first to detect the presence of the affliction in the apparently healthy child, said:

"But they may change their decision tomorrow. So many people have advised them that they are bewildered."

His statement reflected the dreadful uncertainty perplexing the parents—the father is a 30-year-old dentist and the mother is only 23—since they learned two weeks ago that nothing but an operation could spare their tiny daughter's life, and that the operation, even if successful, would leave Helaine Judith blind for life.

RAY OF HOPE SEEN

Even as the parents hesitated, a new glimmer of hope came. Dr. Cassius C. Rogers, brain specialist whom they consulted, asserted there was a slim chance that high voltage X-ray treatments might help.

He recommended the baby be taken to Dr. Henry Schmitz, head of the Mercy Hospital Institute for radiation therapy. There the

Goodbye, Girl in Grey

Death Note Warns Others

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Police today sought identity of a pretty young brunette who swallowed fatal poison in a midtown bus terminal last night after penning a suicide note signed "The Little Girl in Grey."

The message, addressed "to whom this may concern," told of running away from home with a boy at the age of 14 and her subsequent downfall.

"Please, when I die, print this in hopes it may help some other poor girl," ot said, in part.

HAD TOURED EAST

"If it helps a girl who has had even the first thought of leaving home, then I have not done this in vain . . .

"There is hardly a state in the East I have not been in, and I am known and recognized as a woman with a bad reputation, who would take your money and cut your throat without a moment's hesitation.

"I am broke, hungry (I haven't had a meal in three days), no place to sleep; so I took my last money to buy this paper and poison.

"I am leaving no name or address. Just when I am buried (I don't really care whether I am or not) I want people not to pity nor to scorn, just say:

"'She was at least intelligent enough to know that when she reached the bottom she had sense enough to know she really couldn't get up.'"

"I'LL SEE DAD IN HELL"

The note ended with a farewell to her mother, saying:

"You will have no more heartaches and grieving to do over an erring daughter.

"So I say not goodbye, but aloha, and I have no one but myself and father to blame it on. As for you, Dad, I'll see you in hell. The little girl in grey."

A second note was addressed to Vernie Keen of Brooklyn, who told police she had met "the girl in grey" during a bus trip from Lyons, Ga.

"She told me she was a trained nurse and a native of Oklahoma," Miss Keen said. "She told me her name was Patricia, and in Philadelphia she wrote a postcard to her aunt, who lived there."

The dead girl was about 25, brown-eyed, 5 feet, 5 inches tall, and wore a two-piece tailored grey suit and grey suede shoes. There was nothing in her white purse. Her small overnight bag was empty.

Why, Harvard! Playing Girls!

"Harvard vs. Vassar" that long-dreamed headline of sports fans, will be born today at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., when a picked squad of men students will clash with the Vassar field hockey team.

Ten men have been named, all but two of them English graduate students. Their number will be augmented by a single reinforcement from Yale and two Princeton men.

Insurgents Open Drive in Rain

HENDAYE, France (At Spanish Frontier), May 7 (AP)—Galician and Italian troops broke through Spanish government defenses today at a dozen points along the line running eastward from Teruel to the Mediterranean.

Gen. Aranda, commander of the insurgent army driving on Valencia, started a general offensive. His orders were to "Fight, rain or no rain."

Insurgent dispatches said the initial advance penetrated government defenses to a depth of more than six miles in some sectors.

Films' Need? It's Mothers

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (AP)—What the screen needs is more actresses who are mothers, Beautician Max Factor declared today.

"The acts prove that mothers not only make the best actresses, but also that motherhood adds depth and understanding to a woman's face," he said.

Factor named Joan Blondell, Norma Shearer, Marlene Dietrich, Frances Dee, Virginia Bruce and Joan Bennett as film stars whose charm was enhanced when they became mothers.

2 Debs' Court Bids Taken in Rebuke

LONDON, May 7 (INS)—Two New Zealand debutantes were soundly rebuked today by Britain's royal court.

Their invitations to be presented to the King and Queen were suddenly withdrawn.

The reason? The two girls gave newspaper interviews.

N. E. Folk Hit Dies Bill as 'Alien Rule'

A statement by the Immigration Restriction League has allied it with other patriotic and civic groups in opposition to the Dies bill, passed by the House and now pending in the Senate.

The statement, in effect, says the bill would subject the control of deportations of aliens to alien influences hostile to the nation's established immigration policies.

The Immigration Restriction League, founded in 1894, is one of the oldest organizations—if not the oldest—devoted to study of immigration. It was one of the principal supporters of the immigration act of 1924 by which the present quota system was adopted.

Its president is Joseph Lee, president of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Among the vice-presidents have been Thomas N. Carver, professor emeritus of political economy at Harvard; Wickliffe P. Draper, Clarence C. Little, president of the University of Maine, and A. Lawrence Lowell, former president of Harvard.

Renew 9-Year Battle for Girl

The nine-year child-custody battle between Colonel Ralph T. Heard, U. S. Army officer formerly of Haverhill, and his ex-wife, Mrs. Yvonne G. H. Heard of Beacon street, Brookline, railroad heiress, flared into the open again today.

In a new move to gain possession of his 13-year-old daughter, Colonel Heard, World War hero now stationed in San Antonio, Texas, petitioned in Salem court to revoke the 1932 decree in which the child was given to Mrs. Heard.

The officer, once a friend of Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, Haverhill hammer murder victim, charged his daughter's recreation now consists of playing solitaire and attending the movies.

Poker 'Loser' Also Keeps Wife

LOS ANGELES, May 6 (INS)—Besides saving the $150,000 he lost in the "poker game of the century," Squire Harry Clifton today had another reason to celebrate. His wife isn't going to divorce him.

This was revealed by his friend, the Rev. Violet Greener, "Ghost of Hollywood." She stated:

"During the celebration Mr. Clifton received a cable from his wife in England. Everything is perfect between them; there will be no divorce."

Boston Welcomes Duce's Envoy

GREETING ACKNOWLEDGED — Ambassador Fulvio Suvich of Italy lifts his hat in response to a greeting as he and Mrs. Suvich arrive today at Back Bay station for a three-day visit in Boston. Shown (rear) are General and Mrs. Guido Segre, Italian consul, who welcomed Il Duce's envoy to Boston.

lans in Spain is to insure that there will be no Communistic state in the Mediterranean."

Annexation of Austria by Germany, the Italian stated, was a move for peace in Europe.

"Europe is glad to see that the great problem of Austria has finally been settled," he added.

The envoy said that there was "no Fascist movement in the United States."

Again referring to the Spanish civil war, he declared that he "hoped"—then added that there was "no doubt"—that General Franco would be victorious in Spain.

He described Hitler's visit to Rome as signifying "friendship between two nations."

Loud in praise of Fascism, Ambassador Suvich cited the progress made under Mussolini.

"In many instances," he declared, "Italy has been more progressive than here in the United States."

He explained that many of the solutions to social problems "now coming into vogue in the United States were founded and put in practice in Italy in the past 15 years."

From his hotel the ambassador visited William, Cardinal O'Connell at the latter's Lake street, Brighton, residence, where he spent 15 minutes and extended the greetings of the Italian government.

Baby's 'Mercy' Doom Splits Doctors Here

While a five-week-old Chicago baby today faced certain death unless its eyes are removed, leaders in medical centers throughout Boston and the world argued pro and con on the age-old question of "mercy death" or "life at any cost."

The latest subject of the "life or death" discussion is little Helaine Judith Colan, who is suffering from glioma, a rare eye disease.

The infant faces blindness if operated upon; death if the knife is not used. Late last night the parents decided against surgery.

Dr. Gabriel Farrell of Perkins Institution for the Blind declared the baby's life was the only question of importance.

"ONE VITAL THING"

"If the child is in good physical and mental health she should be saved," he said. "Life is worth more than sight. Records show hundreds of blind persons are living happily and usefully to themselves and the world."

But British leaders of the Euthanasia Society in London, who favor painless "mercy deaths" for suffering, doomed patients, divided in their opinions.

"If the child faces blindness throughout her life and she will probably be physically weak," he said, "it would seem reasonable to end her misery painlessly."

LIFE'S THE THING

Dr. Archibald Cronin, West End, London, physician and novelist, took an opposite stand.

"If you asked any doctor who faced this terrible dilemma, his only answer would be to save the child's life," he said. "The operation should be performed. A child starting life blind can do many things for herself in many splendid institutions."

$6000 Gem Theft Suspect Seized

Fred "Greased Lightning" Mangerie, 33, wanted in Boston for the robbery of Mrs. Elizageth J. Williams of Narragansett, R. I., of $6000 jewels in a hotel here, was held in New York today on charges of assault, robbery and escaping custody.

Mangeries was returned to New York from Cleveland, where he was apprehended last Tuesday. He is also under indictment in Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Parents Decide Against Knife For Tiny Baby

The treatment consists of bombarding the growth with the X-rays as a means of arresting its development.

In the bare room of the Garfield Park Memorial Hospital the stricken infant slept. Only two interns entered. Lifting the child from its crib, they placed it gently on a bed nearby, opened its peculiarly lusterless eyes and peered closely at them through an ophthalmoscope. One said:

"We may never again see a case like this."

Then they departed.

DECISION ANNOUNCED

Decision of the distraught parents was made known to Dr. Hershman, who said they told him:

"We have decided—not to operate."

After a pause, he said slowly:

"Perhaps it is for the best. I do not think there is one chance in the world of saving Helaine's life by an operation. Yet you know how it is—as her grandfather I thought it might be best to take that remote chance.

"No one can know the suffering Dr. and Mrs. Colan have undergone."

And then, as if reflecting in his own mind the uncertainty gnawing at the parents, he struck a more hopeful note in issuing a statement which he said was addressed to the entire medical profession. The statement indicated that perhaps the father's and mother's choice for their child was not final. Doctor Hershman's statement follows:

GRANDFATHERS PLEA

"Somewhere in the United States, perhaps in some small village or city, there may be a physician who has had experience with a case like this and obtained favorable results.

"Stranger things have happened before in the history of mankind's struggle against disease.

"If there is such a doctor—anywhere—we would welcome a communication from him.

Doctor Hershman, an obstetrician, was first to inform the young people of their baby's plight after the symptoms of glioma caught his notice as he stood beside theinfant's crib.

Today the parents trod a thorny path through a wilderness of doubtful hopes. The full weight of the problem rested on themselves. Medical science could tell them what might be done, but it remained for them to decide what should be done.

DISEASE DESCRIBED

Eminent physicians watched the struggle. The virtual hopelessness of the baby's plight was conceded by those who described the disease; Dr. Herbert Schmitz, a specialist in tumerous growths, said:

"No one has succeeded in discovering the cause of glioma. It can be described as a wild growth of cells."

Dr. Herman Bundesen, head of the board of health, said:

..."Glioma is a brain tumor and highly malignant because it is enclosed away from the surrounding tissue. It has finger-like projections which spread rapidly and destroy the brain.

"While the tumor itself can be removed, these projections cannot be taken out of the brain."

The Colans have another child, Charlene, 3, who is in perfect health. But, according to Doctor Hershman, their choice has been made none the easier by this fact.

Probe Webster Theater Blast

WEBSTER, May 7—Fire Chief Arthur Belmore today probed a boiler explosion in the basement of the State Theatre, where 150 persons left orderly and without injury.

Gasses slowly rose from the basement but the audience, just gathering for the night showing, left quietly. Chief Belmore estimated damage at $2000.

Threat Letters To Hurley Solved

After confessing authorship of the "Black Hornet" threat letters to Governor Hurley, according to police, a 41-year-old Boston social worker today allegedly admitted he was the writer of a series of notes which for two years have baffled police.

Edmund E. Farrell, 41, of Mapleton street, Brighton, acknowledged that during that time he had been sending Boston police and his superiors in the Boston welfare department on a series of "wild goose chases," police said.

On his complaint, several Boston police captains and authorities of other cities had unsuccessfully sought a crank who was "trying to jeopardize his social servce post."

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Such were revelations of state police today as Farrell, a city employe for seven years, was taken to Psychopathic hospital.

The weird story was heard by the governor himself, who hurried from Brockton when notified that the mystery was solved.

Farrell stood before the governor and declared he had never meant to harm any of the chief executive's daughters. He stated he did not even know where the Hurley home was.

The alleged note writer said that in previous letters he had always wanted to help police solve mysteries in the headlinese.

NO SAMPLES TAKEN

He added that while he worked with police no one ever had thought of taking samples of his own handwriting until that action was taken by the state police.

Farrell is married and has one child.

Farrell's undoing came when a note was received yesterday. It stated that it was all a "joke" and was signed Farrell.

Maid's Suicide Laid to Illness

The body of Alma Doughty, 32, maid in a Beaconsfield road, Brookline, home, lay in a morgue today, after despondency over ill health had caused her to jump from the West Boston bridge into the Charles river.

In a new handbag left on the bridge she had scribbled a note to her employer which read:

"I hope you won't think badly of me, but I could not go on like this. Thanks a million for all you have done for me."

George Costa, of Prospect street, Cambridge, driving by as the woman leaned far out over the bridge, stopped and backed up to investigate but she had disappeared when he reached the spot.

Claire Trevor Bridal 'In July'

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (AP)—Claire Trevor of the movies almost set a date today for her marriage to Clark Andrews, radio director. She said the ceremony would take place "early in July." That was as definite as the blonde would be.

Wilson Assails WPA Job Waste

The $498,034 cost of installing sewers at Old Harbor Village by the WPA, disclosed as nearly twice the $258,290 private contractor estimate, was branded "wilful and shameful waste of public money" today by City Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr.

Similarly, the water job for the South Boston housing project was revealed as having cost $78,834 as a WPA project, though the Boston water department had estimated the cost at $42,043.

"The taxpayer still pays the freight for such colossal folly," Wilson declared, "whether the bill is mailed from Washington or from city hall."

Expect Appeal By Williams

While Lieut.-Gov. Kelly today planned to "take definite legal action" in court Monday, Commissioner of Mental Diseases David L. Williams was declared preparing an appeal to the Supreme Court on his ouster from office by Gov. Hurley and his executive council.

Irked because he could not question Dr. Williams' counsel at the ouster hearing yesterday, Kelly heatedly withdrew, with the threat he would expose the "frameup" behind the "prejudiced, sneaky and tricky hearing."

He did not reveal the nature of his planned legal action.

Friends of Dr. Williams said he would fight to the limit the removal order and seek a decision from the Supreme Court on the validity of the process by which it was reached.

JURORS OPPOSE JURY

WORCESTER, May 7—Asked by Judge Edward T. Broadhurst whether they would prefer jury trial or hearings before a judge alone, 24 out of 27 jurors voted against the jury system as they completed Superior Court duties today.

Wait New Gift Job Details

Probe of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission jobs hung fire today as investigators prepared to reveal further details of alleged wholesale "gift" appointments when hearings resume Monday.

Joseph McCartin of Newton, former executive of the commission, told a special legislative committee yesterday that John L. Delaney, ex-political associate of Governor Hurley, surveyed the commission's job situation before the Governor's inauguration.

Under questioning, McCartin said Delaney had referred the name of Kenneth V. Minnehan of Cambridge, Boston College and Harvard business school graduate, to him for the job of supervisor of statistics and research.

Lost Time

Arthur W. Hall, 28, of Gonic, N. H., was two watches poorer today as the result of his quest for excitement in Boston. Standing in a doorway on Beach street, Chinatown, he was accosted by four men, one wearing a tattoo mark on his chest, who robbed him of the time-pieces. He told police they were worth $87.

Wage Bill Due To Pass Quickly

Filibuster Possible; It Will Be Futile

WASHINGTON, May 7 (INS)—The nation today appeared to be facing a new and far-reaching economic experiment—fixing of national minimum wages and maximum hours by Congress itself.

House passage of the administration-approved Norton wage-hours bill for interstate industries was said by leaders to be certain as a result of the record-breaking signing of a petition by 218 members.

FILIBUSTER POSSIBLE

While a Senate filibuster is possible, wage-hours backers contended sentiment in that body is so overwhelming that cloture can be enforced to bring the issue to a vote.

Even though the measure might fail in a rush for adjournment, the change of sentiment in the House was so pronounced that eventual enactment of the legislation was generally considered a certainty.

A powerful New Deal-Labor coalition, with Republican aid, brought a smashing victory to the "wage-hours bloc" when the petition to discharge the rules committee and call the Norton bill to the floor was completed in little more than two hours.

MAY ADVANCE VOTE

Even bitter opponents of the legislation conceded it will pass after Chairman Mary T. Norton (D.) of New Jersey makes the formal motion to bring the measure into the House.

Mrs. Norton, who led the battle to force a vote in spite of rules committee opposition, can make her motion on May 23. It is possible that the date of consideration may be advanced by rules committee reconsideration and granting of preferred status for the bill.

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Here are the major provisions of the House wage-hour bill:

A graduated minimum wage, starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents at the end of three years.

A maxium work-week starting at 44 hours and decreasing to 40 hours at the end of two years.

The measure would apply only to industries engaged in or affecting interstate commerce. It would not apply to employes engaged in any administrative or executive capacity or agriculture nor would it affect local retailers, seamen, fishermen, railroad, or air transport employes.

Push Hour Bill

Force Out Measure For House Vote

(International News Photograph Service)

WIN WAGE-HOUR SKIRIMSH—Mrs. Mary Norton, Congresswoman, N. J., signing petition which forced newly written wage-hour bill from hands of hostile committee. Petition was backed by 218 legislators in House. Early vote on measure is predicted. Watching Mrs. Norton sign are Representative Richard J. Welch, Calif., J. Burrwood, Daly, Pa., Arthur Healey, Mass., and Edward W. Curley, N. Y.

Martin's O. K. On Wage Bill

Declaring he thought the wage and hour bill now pending in the rules committee a "step in the right direction for New England," Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro announced in Washington today he had signed a petition for its consideration by the House.

He pointed out there are no differentials in the new bill and said industries in all sections are given an equal opportunity.

"No New England industry can be hurt by this bill and eventually it will be a great help to workers and industry alike," Martin said.

"If the bill is kept in its present form we will stop industries from moving South and our manufacturers will have a chance to obtain orders in a highly competitive market like the textiles."

HALL LIBRARY HEAD

John L. Hall today was new president of the Boston public library, succeeding Ellery Sedgwick, whose term expired. He was elected at a meeting of the library trustees.

Green Denies Press Attack

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Senator Green (D.), of Rhode Island, said today that charges the Senate lobby committee has attacked the freedom of the press were "arrant nonsense."

He replied to a statement in which Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican party policy committee, said the lobby committee's investigation of the magazine "Rural Progress" was part of a campaign of "terror and intimidation" against publications which have criticized Administration measures.

The magazine, distributed free to farmers in seven states around Chicago, has lately been edited by Dr. Frank. Green said it had been published simply to spread "propaganda against the New Deal."

BLAME STATE FOR FIRE

SANDWICH, May 7—Blaming the state for the brush fire which took two of their townspeople's lives, 400 Sandwich citizens voted to demand annuities for the men's widows and payment of $2500 to the town.

Women Intensify Revolt On Huge Taxes, Spending

Special to the Boston American

NEW YORK, May 7—The "revolt" of American housewives against the Federal administration's spending-taxing program grew in intensity on two fronts today.

The New York City committee received a pledge of cooperation from Mrs. Sarah A. Hulswitt, who, with Mrs. Louise C. Bispham, pioneered the movement in Suffern, N. Y., and caused distribution of 30,000 handbills attacking government waste.

The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, at its 106th annual convention, announced duplicate taxation and urged that the nation's $12,000,000,000 annual tax bill be met with "a direct tax upon all residents within their ability to pay."

A resolution introduced by Mrs. Malcolm P. MacCoy denounced federal, state and local duplication of taxation, as well as indirect and hidden levies.

Mrs. John Weinstein reported the yearly national tax burden is divided as follows: Federal, $5,000,000,000; local, $4,500,000,000; state, $2,500,000,000. She said there are 175,000 different tax collecting units, New York state alone having 11,188.

Grace's $394,586 Tops '37 Salaries

WASHINGTON, May 7 (INS)—Boomtime business enjoyed by many industries last year resulted in substantial salary increases and bonus payments to corporation executives, an analysis of SEC reports revealed today.

Annual corporation reports covering business operations in 1937 showed that Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, was paid a total of $394,586, of which $214,586 represented bonuses.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of Bethlehem, received $180,000 while three directors—Quincy Bent, C. Austin Buck and Paul Mackall, were paid $154,376 each. This included bonuses of $64,586 to each of the trio.

SONJA'S $210,729

Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, was given $40,000 by RCA for advise on labor relations.

Sonja Henie, blond skater, received $210,729. Warner Baxter received $225,961. Darryl Zanuck, film executive, drew $260,000.

General Electric Corporation paid Owen D. Young, chairman, $235,000, an increase of $88,500 over 1936. Gerard Swope, president, also was paid $235,000, an equal rise.

AUTO SALARIES CUT

Among the few industrial salaries to receive drastic cuts during 1937 were those of automobile executives.

William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, who in 1936 received salaries and bonuses aggregating $507,000, last year received only $140,380.

General Motors' vice president, Charles F. Kettering, dropped to $86,120 from $353,758.

W. P. Chrysler, chairman of Chrysler Corporation, was reduced from $200,700 in 1936 to $189,136 last year.

M. W. Clement, president of Pennsylvania Railroad was paid $100,000 last year, a raise of $40,000.

Salaries of other executives reported for 1937 as compared with the previous year included (first figure in each case 1937 salary):

American Woolen Co., Moses Pendleton, president, $74,350, compared with 1936, $62,925; Charles H. Silver, sales manager, $50,000.

Parochial Schools Mark Mary's Day

Mary's Day will be observed today in 148 parochial schools in the diocese in accordance with the wishes of William Cardinal O'Connell.

More than 100,000 children were to receive Holy Communion in honor of Mary, the Mother of all Mankind. Mary's Day is observed each year just before Mothers' Day in tribute to Mary Immaculate and a sacrifice offering called "Mary's Mite" is given to aid in charitable work.

Jobless Threat Seen in Budget

A warning that unemployment will be increased, rather than relieved, by the huge $76,000,000 budget now awaiting enactment, was voiced today by the Building Trades Employers' Association in a letter to Governor Hurley.

John F. Walsh, secretary of the association, declared that the increased tax rates resulting from the budget would prevent the resumption of private building in this state.

Salem Aide Quits, Ending Battle

A two weeks battle between the Salem city council and the park board was ended today with the resignation of John J. Brophy, chairman of the board.

Relations between the board and council became strained when the council refused approval of certain park appropriations.

Norfolk G. O. P. Women to Meet

Members of the Norfolk County Women's Republican Club will hold their annual luncheon meeting at Weber Duck Inn, Wrentham, Friday, May 13. Mrs. Florence H. LeFevre, president of the organization, will preside.

Roosevelt Sails Home

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt was homeward bound through the Bahamas today aboard a Navy ship well stocked with fish caught off West Caicos Island, 800 miles southeast of this port, during six hours of trolling yesterday.

The cruiser Philadelphia, on which he and his aides are traveling, and the destroyer Fanning, escort ship, will arrive at the navy dock here about 3 p. m. tomorrow. The President will entrain for Washington two hours later, arriving there Monday morning.

"Presidential fishing party was out for nearly six hours and made excellent catch of about 60 fish in all," said a radio message from Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre.

"Twenty-pound barracuda caught by President topped second biggest fish, also a barracuda, caught by Rudolph Forster (White House executive clerk.) Five or six pompanos, a few red snappers and mackerel made up rest of catch."

A seven-foot hammerhead shark, voracious enough to eat anything thrown overboard from the ship, was hooked by the Philadelphia's crew.

Bridegroom, 17, Denies Attack

A 17-year-old bridegroom of four months pleaded innocent in Lynn court today to robbery and attack of Mrs. Marion Nicholson, 54, who a few hours earlier attended a Lynn cafe party with her niece, the boy and his father.

He is William Westcott, former Lynn Junior High School pupil, who eloped in December to Seabrook, N. H., with 15-year-old Pauline Hersey of Lynn.

He was held in $5000 bail on continuance until May 17.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nicholson is in Lynn Hospital with a fractured skull. She was found in an alleyway near a cafe in Washington st.

The boy's father is Floyd Westcott. The woman's neice is Agnes MacPherson, 20.

Sergeant Asa Darnsey said he found lipstick and other articles from Mrs. Nicholson's purse in the youth's pockets.

LUISE RAINER SUED

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS)—Luise Rainer, film star who won the 1937 Academy award, today was a defendant in a $100,000 damage suit brought by Joseph Buccola in behalf of his 15-year-old daughter, Rita. Buccola charged that the girl was injured by a car owned by Miss Rainer and driven by a chauffeur.

HERE ARE THE RULES

Read Them Carefully!

1. Each week-day a scene from a motion picture will be printed in the Boston Evening American until 35 have appeared. One actor will be chosen from this scene. Select the name of the motion picture in which the scene appears, from the list printed near the picture. Choose the name of one movie player represented in the scene, from the list of names printed on this page.
2. Only one set of answers can be submitted by any one person, but each member of a family may enter, and no family will be entitled to win more than one prize.
3. Hold all answers until you have the completed set of 35. DO NOT SEND IN INDIVIDUAL PICTURES!
4. This game is open to all bona fide New England residents, except employes of the New England Newspaper Publishing Company and other Hearst Enterprises, and members of their families or relatives.
5. Send your entry by first class mail or bring it to: Movie Scenes Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass., P. O. Box 866. All entries must bear sufficient postage to be considered.
6. All solutions must be accompanied by a letter of not more than 50 words on: "What my favorite motion picture is and why." The Judges will disqualify any contestants whose letters are written so identical in nature as to show collusion. You may select any motion picture for the subject of your letter. Letters will be considered only in the event of ties in solving these puzzles. Entries must be in the office of the editor, postmarked not later than midnight, TEN days after the last picture is printed.
7. A committee of judges appointed by the Boston Evening American, will select the winners in this contest. The contributor by sending a set of solutions, indicates acceptance of these Rules and Conditions and agrees that the decision of the judges is final and further agrees that no can be no appeal from the judges' decisions. No entries can be returned. All entries become the property of the Boston Evening American.
8. Awards will be paid to the persons sending in the nearest correctly solved complete set of pictures. Neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count. In the event of a tie between or among two or more contestants for any of the prizes, the prize or prizes next in order will be combined in a lump sum and then evenly distributed among those tying.
9. Use of specially prepared lists by outside concerns is strictly prohibited.

Revere Probe Speeded by Immunity Offer

The underlings in Revere's program of "planned corruption" today were ready "to talk" in response to an offer by Attorney General Paul A. Dever of immunity to those who will tell the truth.

There will be no clean bill, however, for high city officials and police executives, who face indictment in connection with the five-month probe of crime and graft.

Such was the decision today as authorities prepared to summons 60 witnesses to testify before a blue ribbon grand jury late this month.

Immunity will be granted only to those who voluntarily co-operate with the prosecution. More than 50 persons face indictmen on conspiracy and other charges.

The exodus of racketmen from Revere is in full swing. Many had held to their operations in the belief the investigation would slow down and eventually be pigeonholed.

Ex-Professor Raps Harvard, Boston's '400'

Boston's so-called aristocracy is of recent and humble stock, most of it descended from country people, smugglers and privateersmen, according to this year's edition of Sargent's Handbook of Private Schools.

Harvard University—its president, faculty and alumni—also comes in for barbed criticism by Porter Sargent, former Harvard professor and editor of the volume.

University alumni, particularly Harvard alumni, are pictured as "dumb," "dead weight," "stupefied and stultified" by the former mentor, who declares that in spite of it all "it's a great time to live."

Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard was praised for "stirring a stagnant academic world," opening new vistas and prescribing new methods.

Sargent adds, however, that Dr. Conant "jostled sacred cows" and that he has bowed to conservatives by "wearily falling back on safe generalities."

He further declares that New England is the birthplace of Fascism.

Working Wives' Ouster Speeded

Backed by his board of aldermen's 7 to 4 vote, Mayor John D. Lynch of Somerville today began ouster proceedings against married women holding posts in city departments.

He signed an order forbidding employment in City Hall of married women whose husbands are gainfully employed, and called a conference of all city department heads to determine action in other units.

"I will begin in an orderly fashion to take action against the wives," Mayor Lynch said. "They will be given hearings and their rights will be respected."

Lyman Approves Deer Island Plan

Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman today added his approval to Mayor Tobin's proposal that the Commonwealth take over Deer Island house of correction for use in housing long-term state prisoners.

The mayor's plan has been given to Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney, Captain John F. Stokes of the state police and Paul Ryan, the governor's secretary, for study.

Aged Roslindale Man Hit by Auto

Dennis O'Callahan, 78, of Washington st., Roslindale, was critically injured in one of several motor accidents in Boston today.

He suffered fractures of the skull and legs when hit near his home by a car, police said was driven by William B. Cavagnaro of Laurie avenue, West Roxbury.

Joseph F. Moore of Hollison was listed by police as operator of an automobile which struck William Morrill, 64, of Huntington avenue, Roxbury, near his home. Morrill received a fractured leg.

Five persons were hurt in a collision on Massachusetts avenue of cars police said were driven by Ruth C. Cavanaugh of North Andover, and Richard A. Morgan of Fuller street, Dorchester.

First Steel Union To Vote on CIO

PITTSBURGH, May 7 (AP)—The first union in steel—the craft-organized Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers—will tackle the question of permanent affiliation with the Committee for Industrial Organization through a national referendum.

Closing their 63rd annual convention, the old-line delegates voted to permit the entire membership of nearly 6000 workers to decide the issue.

Chance Saves Trooper From Mad Maine Killer

SCARBORO, Me., May 7—State Trooper Ralph A. Price was back on the Portland-Boston highway chasing speeders as usual today, but only because he had his luck with him last night.

He might have been in a morgue beside the body of Percy Scamman, who, suddenly crazed, attempted to kill him with a shotgun.

Scamman, owner of the Marshview Inn here, and known to thousands of New England tourists, became crazed during a family quarrel and fired three shots at his wife and stepson as they fled.

Rushing to the house, Price walked in and attempted to reason with Scamman.

"Put that gun down, Percy," Price said, "and let me talk to you."

"Stay where you are, Ralph, or I'll shoot," Scamman replied, backing up.

Scamman finally backed into the inn, then reappeared at a window, aiming the gun at Price. He pulled the trigger, but the shell failed to explode.

He then ran into the kitchen and shot himself through the head.

New Contract Signed by Joan

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS)—Joan Crawford, one of the stars branded as "box office poison" by an exhibitors' group in a sensational advertisement, today was under a new straight five-year contract.

While the financial terms were not revealed by her agent, M. C. Levee, it was understood that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer thought enough of Miss Crawford to assure her a return of $1,500,000 during the five-year period.

Meanwhile, movie moguls and stars alike remain silent on the blast from the Independent Theater Owners' Association. They were hoping, apparently, that the perturbing incident in Hollywood life would soon be forgotten.

41 DIE IN CLIFF CRASH

ISTANBUL, May 7 (INS)—Forty-one persons were killed today when a motor truck tumbled 900 feet down a precipice near Zigana.

Probe in Nazi Camps Looms

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—A congressional inquiry into the spread of alleged Nazi propaganda, especially in 12 camps in New York and New Jersey, was indicated today following issuance of warrants for the arrest of six officers of the Nazi camp Siegfried.

With one of the leaders, Henry Hauck, already under arrest, it was reported the other five named in the warrants will surrender today. Their camp is the gathering place for 25,000 men, women and children during Summer week-ends.

Both Congressmen Dicketein and Sirovich of New York, were behind the move for the congressional inquiry, said the former:

"I shall go before the rules committee Tuesday to support the resolution for a special house investigation."

Jersey City Bans Two U. S. Solons

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 7 (AP)—Two United States Representatives were denied permission today to make public speeches in Jersey City tonight by Public Safety Director Daniel Casey, who described them as "personally obnoxious to the great majority of our citizens because of their Communistic endeavors."

Representatives Jerry J. O'Connell (D.) of Montana and John T. Bernard (F.-L.) of Minnesota nevertheless carried forward plans to address a mass meeting in Journal square.

SOCIETY TO MEET

Mariners from all over New England will attend the semi-annual meeting of the Boston Marine Society, world's oldest maritime organization, next Tuesday at 88 Broad street.

Mrs. Grapewin Day Late on Operation

She entered a hospital for an operation today. Annually for the past three years she has had an operation on May 6.

Prowler Escapes Police 3 Times in Cambridge

A daring prowler terrorized a 25-year-old Cambridge girl early today in three visits toa Harvard street apartment building, each time eluding police called to capture him.

Miss Wilhemina Matthews, 25, was awakened to find a strange man standing in her kitchen on the third floor. When the girl dashed for a telephone, the intruder threatened to strike her, then raced down three flights of stairs to the street.

"I'll be back so watch out," was his bold parting threat.

A half hour later he kept his promise and escaped only after a 10-minute battle with John M. Kirker, occupant of the first floor.

While Kirker struggled with the prowler, his wife called police, but on their second arrival, the man again had disappeared.

Police were called a third time, an hour later, when the man again appeared, this time hurling rocks at the building before vanishing. The girl described the man for police.

Fear of Deal Ties up Money

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, May 7—Jersey City asks the following timely questions: "How does the purchasing power of the dollar today compare with 1929? Why was the value of the dollar reduced to 59 cents? Why did no acute rise in prices follow? Would further devaluation now cause a sharp rise?"

In terms of the necessaries for ordinary cost of living, the dollar in March, 1938, would buy nearly 40 per cent more than in 1929. In March, 1938, it would buy 15 per cent more than in 1929, but 17 per cent less than in March, 1933.

The cost-of-living indexes for 1929, March 1933, and March 1938 are: 100.1, 71.8, 86.7.

AFRAID TO BUY

Prices rose little after "devaluation" because we were not on the gold standard, and because the New Dealers caused so much fear that people were afraid to buy things.

You see, "devaluation does not mean reducing the value of the dollar. It merely means putting less gold in the mythical gold dollar.

But we don't use gold dollars; for Roosevelt put us off the gold standard in April, 1933. So what was done to gold dollars in January, 1934, did not affect our prices necessarily.

Then, too, devaluation is usually accompanied by unsound and destructive policies. In fact, it is usually caused by wasting money and piling up public debt. So when the operation is performed, it brings no improvement in business.

"SMART" MOVE

There was no good reason for devaluing the dollar. The real reason was the New Dealers' desire to be "smart" and play the game that foreign nations were forced to play because they were really bankrupt.

They also wanted to get the easy money to spend that comes when you cut dollars in two and call each half a dollar. (They are now using the paper profit they made that way by buy our votes, and thus keep in power.)

Further devaluation would not cause a sharp rise in prices immediately. We are still off the gold standard, and we are still afraid to use money in business, because of our fear of the New Deal.

Baronet Studies Whaling Exhibit

Sir Percy E. Bates, baronet, who as chairman of the board of the Cunard-White Star, Ltd., is master of 70 of the world's big ships, slipped away today to browse in America's whaling lore at the New Bedford whaling museum.

The British shipping magnate declared there was little likelihood for a European war. He also had a word of praise for America's Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, who, he said, had won all England when he made his famous hole-in-one.

Search for Gold Ends in Tragedy

BERLIN, N. H., May 7—His search for gold today brought tragedy to the home of Michael P. Bourassa, resulting in the death of his five-months-old son and the serious illness of his entire family.

Seeking to extract gold from a rock he had found in Pinkham Notch, Bourassa heated it on the stove and poured a metallic element over it. The resultant fumes, kept in by closed windows, killed the infant and made the family ill, Coroner L. J. Beaudoin said.

Contrasts Political and Utility Data

By B. C. FORBES

The utility industry is the pet hate of the government. Utility companies are pictured as nation-wide robbers.

Yet, ponder this fact:

"In 1936, on the basis of four persons to a family, government expenditures per family were more than $500. If this cost of government were cut only 4 per cent, the saving would pay the residential electric bill of our whole nation."

Think of it. If tax-eaters would absorb only 96 cents of each dollar they now absorb, the saving would equal the amount paid by every family using electricity.

But how much exhortation comes from headquarters at Washington to cut down the spending of taxpayers' money? Hardly a whisper.

Instead, President Roosevelt is vehemently urging another gigantic spending spree. In 10 months of the present fiscal year the New Deal has spent over $6,363,000,000. Notwithstanding all the increases in taxes, this spending overran income by $1,270,000,000.

How much the New Deal will spend during the new fiscal year, starting July 1, heaven only knows. The arch-spenders don't seem to care very much how high the total balloons.

* * *

The utility industry, which the Administration wants to knock out of business in various territories, pays in taxes more than $1,000,000 EVERY DAY to support government. Tax levies on operating companies have increased over 50 per cent in the last five years.

Of each dollar you pay for electric current tax collectors take fully 15 cents.

While the cost of government has been soaring alarmingly, the cost of electric light has been steadily reduced. Ten years ago the bill for 140 kilowatt hours was $30, whereas today the average home consumes 790 kilowatt hours and pays therefor only $35. In other words, 75 per cent more service has meant only 15 per cent more in cost.

Unless the government adopts a more reasonable attitude towards the utility industry, various companies may find it impossible to obtain the capital necessary to furnish service to new homes in new sections.

Consumer Income Dip Nears End

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

The decline in consumer incomes for the country as a whole and New England in particular is nearly over, according to our way of looking at latest reviews and estimates based on studies of leading industries.

In the next six months United States income is not expected to fall more than three per cent under the average for the past three years.

In New England prospects may generally be rated as fair and if it were not for Rhode Island figures estimating a loss of nine per cent there would be little reason for expecting any shrinkage at all.

Irregular Market

Profit selling in utilities and buying in aircrafts gave today's stock market a moderately irregular appearance. While lagging tendencies were displayed by most industrial groups, aircrafts son took a turn for the better and recorded gains running to a point or more in the final hour.

Brokers said some of their customers decided to cash in on yesterday's fast utility run-up pending more definite assurances the administration and power companies intended to bury the hatchet.

There has been a definite change for the better in the outlook for the utility industry, and if buying indications on the tape are reliable, it is the real thing this time.

In view of the big blocks of stock taken at advancing prices, there is good reason to place some credence in current State St. rumors that the administration is going to drop its "crack-down" attitude.

In any event, the admittance by an important official, SEC Commissioner Hanes, that many important benefits would accrue from teamwork with the industry is a development deserving of a hearty welcome.

* * *

TECHNICAL POINTERS

From a purely technical viewpoint, the backwardness of industrial shares detracts somewhat from the new recovery highs set by rails and utilities.

While it is undoubtedly true that we can now afford to pick up better issues in both groups on nearby dips, it cannot yet be said that the market as a whole is in an intermediate uptrend.

For those who insist on full confirmation by all averages, we can only say that the the industrials must reach the 122 level before a clear-cut intermediate uptrend will exist.

It would be pure guesswork to say it will. But if utilities and rails are going to spend much money industry will benefit and the average should move up in a positive way.

Girl Guilty In Baby Gift

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 7 (AP)—Rheta Lowell, 19, of New York City, convicted in municipal court today of unlawfully surrendering a minor child to another person, today is under a suspended sentence of six months in the county home.

Watson Tuttle, Jr., of Walkertown, a truck driver, who said the young mother gave him her seven-weeks-old boy, was given a six months' suspended road sentence.

Tuttle said he picked up the mother and child on a highway in Virginia and that when they reached here April 24 she gave him the baby.

Ex-Austrian Editor Suicide

LONDON, May 7 (INS)—Dr. Stefan von Muller, half Jewish former editor of the world-famous Austrian newspaper, "Neue Freie Presse," committed suicide in Vienna according to a Reuter dispatch today.

Muller, in spite of his partially "non-Aryan" ancestry, was known for his pro-German sympathies even before the Nazi "conquest" of Austria.

He remained as editor of the Neue Freie Presse for two weeks after Germany's annexation of Austria, but was then removed in favor of an "Aryan" editor.

TAXES! TAXES! TAXES!

"TAX" comes from the Latin, tangere, which means to touch. The average workingman who applauds any tax that touches those of a higher income than himself fails to realize he is also touched through unseen taxes.

Those unseen taxes touch the average workingman and his family proportionately heavier than those of higher income.

Suppose we observe the average married man with a family of children, whose income is not large, who occupies a rented home, who believes he pays the tax collector nothing, because he does not pay taxes either on income or real estate.

If he owns an automobile, he pays four cents on every gallon of gasoline he uses in it.

If he purchases one package of cigarettes daily, he pays $21.90 in hidden taxes yearly.

If he buys one quart of liquor each month, he pays $6 in hidden taxes.

If he buys a new suit of clothes, he absorbs 12 different hidden taxes.

On every loaf of bread he buys, there are no less than 49 different hidden taxes.

If he pays $400 a year in rent; he pays $160 in hidden taxes.

The average workingman whether he likes it or not works approximately 10 weeks in each year for the government speed announcement of promotions . . . Again, your correspondent predicts that Lieutenant Justin McCarthy will be "made" a captain . . . Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox will make his future home near Boston, and is negotiating for a home in Newton Highlands . . . The friendship of Cronin and Owner Tom Yawkey is so close that it will be "Manager Joe" for years to come wherever the Sox finish this year or next.

Having "called" the recent headlines regarding Deer Island in last Sunday's column, the next prediction is that Mayor Tobin will make an effort to pass the burden of the East Boston airport to the State of Massachusetts . . . Most of the traffic at the airport is interstate, the mayor will argue . . . And the proportion of Bostonians holding pilot's licenses is small.

Eighteen bands were auditioned for the engagement at Wentworth-by-the-Sea and Marshall Morrill was the choice . . . He will open at the North Shore spot June 21 . . . Weren't they singing a requiem over the Yankees less than two weeks ago? . . . The Yanks, by the way, acted like a crew of prima-donnas in the matter of having their pictures taken when they played that last series in Boston . . . Mrs. James K. O'Donnell of Waterville, Me., who was Helen Roche of Boston and one of the first American girls to qualify for a flying license, has written the music for what will probably be the Pine Tree State's official song, Maine, My State" . . . Helen Burpee Larsen wrote the words.

A Party We Missed:

This paragraph is referred to Mayor Tobin . . . It's about a play and party that the oversigned would have attended if it were possible.

Here is the invitation: "Us kids want a gym very much and we are doing everything we can to help get one . . . We are putting on a play about a gymnasium. It's title is 'After Supper.' We would like to have you come. We have asked the mayor, too, because he said that he would see what he could do for us . . . Do you think that you could possibly be present at our great performance? . . . We are having ice-cream, too . . . We hope to have you there . . . Sincerely your friends, Eileen Theresa Kemmit, Dorothy Cavanaugh, Gertrude Varley, Alice McDonald.

The gym the youngsters are talking about is the much-needed gym in South Boston . . . Thirty years ago there was a good gymnasium in South Boston . . . It is too bad if the city's financial situation will not improve sufficiently to furnish a replacement.

Once Over Lightly:

Tom Harty is dancing at the Stanley Grill in Montreal, and goes to Virginia Beach for a two-week engagement beginning May 28 . . . The charge that many state legislators use their temporary posts to win lucrative jobs in the public service will not be applicable to James H. Dixon, if the former Latin School and Harvard swimmer gets elected to the House this fall . . . His campaign will carry a promise that he will not seek or accept appointive office if the voters choose him as their representative . . . Young Dixon is a B. C. Law School man . . . In Ward 18, John T. Padden, who works for the Boston "L", will try for a representative's seat . . . He was a member of the ward committee for six years . . . The Burroughs Newsboys Fraternity sponsored their second annual Camp Benefit dance last night, and a boxing tournament will be held next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Proceeds will swell the fund to send undernourished newsboys to the fraternity's summer health camp in Agassiz Village, West Poland, Me.

Nineteen-year-old Ed. Peterson of the Gloucester Daily Record is probably the youngest editor of a daily paper in the country . . . Italian Night will be celebrated at Loew's State Tuesday in tribute to Marco Polo, the Venetian explorer, around whose career Sam Goldwyn has produced "The Adventures of Marco Polo" . . . Bob Appleton, manager of the Hotel Bradford, has set May 21 as the date for his annual garden party at the Appleton domicile in Newton. More than 800 invitations will be sent . . . H. M. Addison, division manager for Loew's, is making his annual inspection tour of the theaters under his supervision, and will be absent from Boston for a month . . . Meyer Grossman has announced his candidacy for a seat in the Governor's Council representing the Second District . . . Arlene Howard is singing with Bob Pooley's orchestra at the Hotel Coronado in Worcester.

If Fay Roope, the Newton boy who played in the original cast of "What Price Glory", will communicate with this department, there's some good news awaiting him . . . And Jean Jacques of Cambridge is eager to communicate with Cy Cummings, who was one of the Royal Rooters of the Red Sox back in the days before the World War . . . Dave Lilienthal, the handsome furrier, has returned from the South with a bonafide coating of tan.

A recent mention of Maurice D. Condrey of Lowell described Maurice as a Republican . . . Nothing could be more remote from the truth . . . Paul Dever's staunch supporter, Condrey is a Democrat . . . Lowell's Health Commissioner, John McNamara, was in line for the state health commissioner's job at one time. Governor Hurley is expected to stand firm in his effort to appoint Dr. Paul Jakmauh to the post.

Broadcast of Kentucky Derby Radio Highlight

By N. F. T.

FLASHING IT ALONG fast, as horseflesh will be in there doing, network "mike" men have Kentucky Derby descriptions in store for this evening.

It will waft early, however, on the air during supper hours and the best check on the time arrangement for the various stations, is the timetable of programs.

Due ahead of the big Churchill Downs race, the banquet doings for Adolf Hitler hit these shores (WBZ) at 5:30 today, short waved from Rome in Italy.

The 8 o'clock play (WBZ) called "Twisting the Rope" is by Professor Douglas Hyde, soon to be Ireland's first President.

HOST AS GUEST

Incidentally, the "Professor Quiz" half hour heads coast to coast out of Louisville this evening (WEEI) at 9 o'clock, with Governor Albert (Happy) Chandler as a special guest.

How a newspaper reporter thwarted a big bank robbery is the dramatized diversion (WEEI) awaiting "Johnny Presents" program listeners tonight from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

Mady Christians, of our famous Hollywood film colony, has a dial date to do some larking (WEEI) with Buddy Clark and Mark Warner music makers while "Your Hit Parade" passes from 10 to 10:45 this evening.

Mady Christians

Where the million dollar CBS studios now stand in Hollywood, is the same spot Cecil B. De Mille staged his "Squaw Man" silent movie behind barn doors 25 years ago.

Ham Fisher, cartoonist who puts "Joe Palooka" on paper is among a number of guests for Cal Tinney to take into camp for interviewing (WNAC) between 8 and 8:30 this evening.

TENDER TRIBUTES

Loudspeaker patrons picking the "National Barn Dance" broadcast out of the ether (WBZ) when 9 o'clock comes tonight, will hear "I Want A Girl" and "My Mother's Eyes" and "I've Loved the Same Girl for 50 Years" as musical manifestations of "Mother's Day" observance over the nation tomorrow. Not forgetting "Mother of Mine" soloing by Henry Burr.

Also don't miss the special arrangement of "I Love You Truly" by Guy Lombardo and his tune troupe tomorrow toward dusk, meaning 5:30 to 6 p. m.

Listeners liked the spirited sense of humor that characterized the Herbert Hoover talk night before last.

Want some quartet vocalizing above par aplenty? Then lend an ear or two while "The Southernaires" sing (WBZ) tomorrow noon, until 12:30 p. m.

Watch for word soon about Ed Wynn coming back to broadcast again in a big way.

Holmes-Stone Ceremony Skating Club Event

By BETTY ALDEN

OLIVIA STONE, one of the diminutive stars of the recent ice carnival staged by the Boston Skating Club, is being married this afternoon to Stacey Holmes, who has been a leader in Skating Club and other charitable activities around town since his graduation from Harvard in 1931 . . .

Following the ceremony in Wayland's First Congregational Church, the guests will be welcomed at Hazelbrook Farm, spacious estate of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sidney Stone . . . "Bugsy," as the bride is intimately known, is being given in marriage by her father, and Canon Cornelius Trowbridge is tying the marriage knot . . .

Bugsy is wearing her sister's wedding gown of ivory satin trimmed with heirloom lace and her tulle veil falls from a coronet of orange blossoms . . . Garden roses and lilies of the valley are combined in her bouquet . . . Dorothy Stone Stevens (Mrs. A. Perkins) of Cambridge, the bride's sister, is wearing a filmy gown of blue-green marquisette for her matron of honor role, and the four bridesmaids are wearing white marquisette with muffs of daffodils and spring flowers . . . Grace E. Madden, a national figure skating star, is a bridesmaid, together with Leslie Eustis, Dorothy Dow and Eleanor Eustis, all prominent members of the Boston Skating Club . . .

Fashionables at Locke-Howell Bridal

DURING FRANCES HOWELL'S wedding yesterday afternoon to Ferguson Locke, there was a stag line in Trinity Church . . . a feminine one . . . for, while their husbands performed various duties and flanked the bridal couple at the altar, the ushers' wives all sat together in one pew . . . among them Mrs. Franklin Reece, Jr., Mrs. John Ford, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. Nathaniel Clark and Mrs. Gerald Bramwell . . .

Mrs. Arthur Locke, wedding, on the other hand, was the only clergyman's wife present, so Nat Clark ushered her to a pew all by herself, where she listened to her husband's dignified intonation of the marriage service . . . Her pale blue tweed suit had graceful cape sleeves and her blue hat was trimmed with currant red . . .

As the bride walked slowly down the aisle with her uncle, Charles Cheney of Concord, Eleanor Swift must have been saying to herself, "A week from this afternoon I'll be walking down that same aisle" . . . for Eleanor becomes Mrs. Lawrence Lowell Reeve next Friday in Trinity . . . She sat with Peggy Hardwick at yesterday's ceremony and later joined her sister, Lucile, who was accompanied by Mrs. Harold G. Cutler and Dorothy Preston . . .

Mrs. Eliot Cutler in Modish Afternoon Outfit

JANE RAGLE AND MARJORIE MOTLEY were two of the many smartly-dressed younger generation in the throng of fashionable guests and the Pentecost girls made their usual attractive appearance . . . The popular combination of pink and black fashioned Mrs. Eliot Cutler's modish afternoon outfit . . .

Others present were Mrs. Thomas Claflin with Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. George Megrew, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Reece, Sr., Constance Turner, the Alexander Whitesides and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren, the latter very attractive in a black and white print with a pink veil tied closely about her face and small black hat.

AWAITS CUE—Frances Howell is all set to begin her march down the aisle of Trinity Church to become the bride of T. Ferguson Locke. With her is her sister Polly, the maid or honor, who wore a corn yellow gown with a red hat and red and yellow flowers. The bride's gown was yellow marquisette with yellow tulle veil. She and Polly are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Howell of Baltimore.

Junior League To Elect

Mrs. James Parker, president of the Junior League, will preside at the annual meeting of the league at Ford Hall, Marlborough street, at 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning. Election of officers will follow.

Mrs. Parker will report on the general progress of the Boston League. Mrs. Charles E. Mason, Jr., first vice-president, will give an account of the provisional training course. Anstice Kimball, treasurer, Alice G. Wood, secretary, and Mrs. Robert F. Fiske, publicity chairman, are other members of the executive committee who will read reports.

Joy Kimball will report on the activities of the welfare department, and Pauline Ehrlich will give the report of the arts department. Jean Gordon will tell of the placement work.

Program to Aid Home Visitors

Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. Charles Hopkinson and Mrs. Bentley Warren are members of the committee for the program of monologues which Helen Howe will give in John Hancock Hall on Wednesday evening, May 11. The Home and School Visitors Association will benefit.

St. Elizabeth Guild Plans Luncheon

Reservations indicate that the May luncheon which Mrs. John C. Kiley is holding at her Commonwealth avenue home Tuesday will be another successful event sponsored in behalf of the Guild of St. Elizabeth Jay nursery.

For good measure an informal talk on redecorating your summer home will be offered by Agnes Troy, secretary of the National Interior Decorators' Society.

Chairman of the committee Mrs. Michael F. Foley of Brookline, is assisted by Louise Fitzgerald and Mrs. David Johnson.

Mrs. Andrew Chandler heads the reservations list which includes Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Mrs. John F. Burns, Mrs. Joseph Doherty, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, Mrs. Alexander Ellis, Mrs. George Montgomery, Mrs. Joseph O'Connell, Mrs. Edward Rhattigan and Mrs. Joseph Cavanagh.

Angela Fowler To Wed Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lufkin Fowler of Katonah, N. Y., who have been visiting their ancestors Governor Winthrop of Massachusetts and Governor Peter Stuyvesant of New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Angela Fowler, to Craig Wylie, graduate of St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H.

The wedding will take place in Katonah this summer.

Dorothy Dever In Church Ceremony

At an 11 o'clock ceremony this morning in St. Patrick's Church in Roxbury, Dorothy Virginia Dever became the bride of David Loring Murphy of Milton.

Rev. John Quinlan, cousin of the bridegroom, officiated at the wedding, assisted by Rev. Aloysius Madden.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, John Francis Dever, was attired in a basque frock of net and satin. Her tulle veil had a chaplet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendant, Rose Clark Cox of West Roxbury, wore a powder blue crepe ensemble and carried a bouquet of roses and larkspur. The bridegroom's brother, A. Robert, was best man.

Today's bride was graduated from Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame and Emmanuel College. Mr. Murphy prepared at Phillips Exeter Academy and was graduated from Dartmouth. He is a member of the D K E.

Staley Group To Dance

Senior supper dance of the Staley College of the Spoken Word will be held Tuesday evening at the Captain's Cabin, Myles Standish Hotel.

The pleasant evening of dining, dancing and merry-making has been planned by an enterprising committee. Among them are Edwin O'Connor, Phyllis McCarthy, Ruth Noll, Katherine Lawless, Blythe Quackenbush, William Kramer, Francis Scanlon, Arthur Joyce and Thomas Griffin.

'Tan' Sargent of Hasty Pudding Fame to Wed

Edward Rotan "Tan" Sargent, who wrote several original and popular songs for the Hasty Pudding Club's annual show a couple of seasons ago and whose playing on an electric guitar was one of the hits of the show, will listen to an old familiar tune played on a church organ on Saturday afternoon, June 18.

On that afternoon "Tan" will stand by the altar of St. David's Church in Radnor, Pa., awaiting the arrival of his bride-to-be, Ruth Virginia Sargent, and her coterie of bridal attendants.

Miss Sargent, whose engagement was announced last month, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Winchester Sargent of Penn Valley, Pa. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Sargent of Eastern Point, Gloucester and Haverford, Pa.

Mary Lucille Sargent will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Wilda Sargent, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent 3rd., Ruth McCracken and Betty Malatesta. Winthrop Sargent, 3rd, will be the best man for his brother.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Have the Brightest Smile

PEARLS beyond price . . . those that gleam through lips curved in laughter . . . and the loveliest of Hollywood, like Ann Sheridan, realize the full value of a brilliant smile. So yours may rival theirs, Arline Gould tells of a remarkable French dentifrice.

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOUR TEETH don't sparkle whitely as wave caps on a brisk morning, there's a toothpaste that will work wonders in the way of new brightness!

It's a dentifrice from France. He nothing we've ever encountered before in a smile-conscious world. And it instantly gives you a smile a beautiful whiteness.

If you go on for perfection in all the little details of personal grooming you'll agree with many of us users that it is delightful to taste and lovely to use as well. Obesity Health Menace

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Few other subjects in dealing with the human body have received such attention as that of "overweight." In spite of all the propaganda, spread about it excess weight steadily continues to be a menace to the physical welfare and longevity.

It cannot be denied that marked overweight is a stumbling block to good health. It is not alone a matter of looks; it places a direct burden upon the heart, liver and kidneys. For this reason it must be said that excessive overweight is often a short cut to heart disease, hepatic disease and diabetes.

I well admit that some continue to gain in weight regardless of every sacrifice they make. In some instances there may be glandular disturbances. Particularly some defect in the thyroid or some other ductless gland.

A sudden gain in weight or a progressive increase in weight requires medical attention.

Your doctor will determine the cause of your obesity and prescribe the diet and other treatment.

Wife Needs Reforming

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The interesting letter I received this morning from Chelsea concerns a woman who insists that a wife's place is very much in the home.

The only trouble is that her husband cannot quite agree. He believes she might prove more useful to the husband if her attitude were not so [illegible] contributed a little toward the bread and butter.

Here is his letter just as he writes it:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

My first mistake in our married life was letting my wife her early morning coffee but she said she was used to it and I agreed.

We've been married ten years and have no children. She has never cared for children and I've agreed to that too. Not long ago I advertised a lady cum from a telephone and I won't go into details how [illegible]

[illegible] I suggested to my wife that she help out by doing a little bookkeeping and writing the rare [illegible] letter she refused.

[illegible] we were married she was a good stenographer typist and bookkeeper. Her reason for refusing is that she thinks I can afford to hire a stenographer and bookkeeper saying that her place is in the home.

Well I love my wife who is a very pretty and fascinating woman and I'm beginning to wonder about things. PUZZLED.

DEAR FRIEND

Your sense of domestic slavery is expressed in a sentence when you write "my wife is a pretty and fascinating woman. But the years will attend to that my dear sir.

When she is no longer pretty and fascinating what next?

In your place don't you think it's time to try a little domestic reformation?

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ROUGH TREATMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We've known each other for several months. We met at a dance, and both are experts at swing dancing. After being attentive for a few months, I just can't figure him out now.

The other night he gave me to understand I was to meet him outside the gymnasium where a certain basketball game was to be held, but I didn't show up.

He never wants to take me home evenings, claims that I live at too great a distance to escort me, so I always have to go home alone, and I don't like that one bit.

He talks of another girl and tells me how much he likes her and has shown me letters she has written him.

Shall I tell him when he takes me out that to meet escort me home, or else "Or shall I drop him?

BETTY LOU.

It's a pretty safe bet, my dear, that the young man who shows another girl's letters around isn't worth cultivating as a friend. No one but a cad would do that.

Better drop him, and the sooner the better.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

'My Love Is New' -:- -:- By Iris Bennett

Constance Meets Gordon's Friends

CHAPTER 24

The telephone was ringing when Constance came into the hall.

"It's Van!" a breathless voice said. "Rosalind and I are on our way to New York and Bermuda!"

She heard Rosalind's merry laugh. How good it was to hear that again! So they were together . . .

"But how—when . . ."

Rosalind spoke. Her happy voice broke. "I'm wearing an old white dress and sport shoes and socks! I'm going to New York like this! I don't even have a hat with me! Will you tell Mother and Father? Will you go to see Nina? I went to the station and waited to see Van. Tell them I'm happy again and promise to be good. We don't care what anybody says! We don't care!"

Constance said, "I'll tell them. Be happy and write."

Rosalind's voice was distant. "Good-bye. We've got to get this train . . ."

From upstairs her mother called, "Was that Rosalind? She's been gone for hours and I've been so worried about her."

Looking up the steps, Constance smiled.

And laughed quietly at Ruth's shocked face. "Yes, it's true! They sounded awfully happy. Wake up father and tell him."

• • •

The next day, before she went to Gordon, Constance drove to the Howard home in a bright smock with a broad hat over her brown hair. Nina Howard was pulling weeds from her beloved flowers.

Seeing Constance, she straightened and smiled.

"I can't offer you a dirty hand. But how are you? You know?"

"Van called me last night."

"He called me, too." She shook her head.

"I guess it must be true love when it overcame such wear and tear and bitterness.

"I was furious at first because we had done everything to keep him away from Rosalind. He's been spending most of his time at the club at the bar, you know. He never went back to the bank after that night.

"I loved Rosalind and missed her. Now I hope he'll go back to work and make us proud of him again. We're going to build them a house when they get back and last night Stephen wired money to the bank in New York where Van always stays."

She sighed and smiled again. "What else could we do?"

ROSALIND'S JOY

The next day there was a gay letter from Rosalind which Constance read over her mother's shoulder. "We shopped all day," she wrote. "It was so much fun, because salespeople wouldn't believe I was more than 13 years old and married. You should see my clothes! Oh, but I know now that clothes are only pretty things that hang on you and cover you and they'll never be very important to me again.

"Two tickets to Bermuda! Two tickets for a second honeymoon! And the Howards are going to build us a house when we get back and we're going to settle down and have a family.

"Tonight we went dancing, but we talked of nothing except the house. Van is going back to the bank when we get back. From now on I'm going to be the soul of propriety and never disgrace you again.

"Be happy with me because I have everything—I have my husband again."

Ruth's eyes filled. "I am happy for her. Nina Howard called last night. I think she'd like us all to be friends. I think she'd rather have us and Rosalind and see her happy than not have us and see her drink his youth away. And that makes good sense. But Rosalind will be coming home and you'll be leaving, Constance."

"I'll always come back to see you and Father."

"Yes, but . . ." She folded Rosalind's letter and went into the next room, leaving the sentence unfinished.

Constance thought, "She means that she is sure of Rosalind's tomorrow but not sure of mine. She means she can look into Rosalind's future and that it's safe, but I have mine to make with Gordon and we don't know what it will be. He told me not to worry about his debts."

• • •

Alex and Irene Conant were due on Saturday morning. And on Saturday morning Constance wore a blue silk dress and a small beige hat with a brim.

When she drove into the driveway of the Spanish house and parked the old roadster behind the Conant's gaudy yellow phaeton, she saw them with Gordon on the terrace with tall cool drinks in their hands. She had a moment of trepidation.

"I'm a small town girl and I've been nowhere and they are rich, worldly people. They'll wonder why Gordon chose me. If they knew his first wife, they'll compare me with her."

Lisbeth Shelley . . . In the book Gordon had covered his marriage in vague terms. Because of her, she wondered? Because he had not wanted her to know why his marriage had failed?

But his second marriage would be different.

It would not, could not fail.

STRANGE PEOPLE

But walking across the lawn to them, she knew that she did not like Gordon's friends.

Stupid, why perhaps to judge so quickly but somehow she knew that her first impression was irrevocable.

IRENE CONANT was cold, mechanical, artificial. She stared at Gordon. She said: "We wondered what you were up to here. We said only a girl could keep you away from the bright lights so long."

Irene Conant wore her pale hair in a roll around her small head. She had large perfect teeth, a dazzling smile, and shrewd restless blue eyes.

She wore a white flannel suit and a blue scarf held together at her throat by a diamond pin.

Nervously she flicked the ashes of her cigarette on the lawn. When she saw Constance, her eyes moved quickly from Constance's high-heeled white linen sandals to the top of the small beige hat.

Alex Conant had sandy hair, pale blue eyes without spirit, and a weak mouth usually twisted into an easy smile. He was tall and large. Like Gordon, his white suit accentuated the deep tan of his face.

When Constance reached them Gordon went to her and put his arm through hers.

"This is the surprise I told you I had for you," he said. "This is Constance Darby. We are going to be married next month."

Irene crossed her slender brown legs leaned back in the white chair and looked up.

Instantly her dazzling smile was set. Alex's effortless grin became real and a little spark came to his dull eyes.

"That calls for congratulations," he said. His voice was thick. Lifting the tall cool drink he looked at Constance.

"Here's to you and lots of luck."

SCHEMING EYES

Irene did not pick up her glass. Coolly she said, "How do you do, Miss Darby? Or Constance?"

Her eyes narrowed at Gordon. She spoke in a drawling, husky voice.

"We wondered what you were up to here. We said that only a girl could keep you away from the bright lights so long. But when you said you had a surprise I was wondering if you were going to exhibit a prize ear of corn."

Alex said, "I'll go in and fix you a drink, Constance."

When he left Constance sat opposite Irene Conant and wondered what to say to this woman with restless scheming eyes and a brilliant mechanical smile and hard voice.

But Gordon spared her by asking "You haven't told me what you and Alex have been doing? Or have you, as usual, been doing nothing? Have you seen Helena and Boris? Where did they go this summer?"

"We've just come from putting my boys in school. I've had them with me all summer and I've enjoyed positively extraordinary [illegible]

"I'm glad they're out of the way, [illegible] and I [illegible] Alex. I [illegible] with Janie.

Mother's Day

The Editor Says:—Study the artist's admirably drawn tribute to Mother and you will find yourself writing your own editorial.

Your thoughts go back over the years to the far away yesterday. You live again your childhood. You see your mother, hear her voice, feel the touch of her hand, and, joyfully, with the great Thackeray say

"Mother is the name of God, in the lips and hearts of little children."

On no other subject can you write with the depth of feeling that inspires you when you write of motherhood, and especially of your own mother.

But words before deeds become empty and hollow. Tomorrow, Mother's Day is the occasion for devotion to her who lives, for reference to her who awaits eternal reunion with you in the Great Beyond.

Resolve now to make the day truly her day.

Make up your mind that the carnation you wear is but a symbol of the good things you want to do, and will do.

Tell yourself that from your rising hour to your retiring you will give every minute to Mother.

Fill the day with gladness for her, to whom you owe everything you are and everything you hope to be or have.

Then, rightly, you will celebrate Mother's Day, and the better person because of the celebration, you will henceforth make EVERY day a Mother's Day.

A "TECH" SENIOR, Howard C. Lawrence, writes that television will soon be an important and necessary part of our daily lives.

He draws an interesting word picture of the Radio of Tomorrow, a marvelous instrument that will give us long-distance sight as well as globe-girdling ears.

Perhaps our young friend is too optimistic. But we do not think so. The training that the Institute of Technology and similar schools are providing is bound to add to the world's treasury of wonders.

And in all probability the new Edisons and Marconis that are to be graduated a few weeks hence will pave the way for the establishment of hundreds of new industries with employment for thousands of our jobless millions.

What the invention of the automobile, the electric light and the telephone did will be repeated. That's certain. Moreover, it is the hopeful avenue of escape from depressions and "recessions."

Only one fear haunts us. What if Tomorrow's Telephone makes it possible for one to be seen by the person at the other end of the wire? It certainly would be annoying to have to comb your hair and adjust your tie every time you picked up the receiver?

PAY OR WALK! That will be the experience of Massachusetts motorists if Governor Hurley signs the Senate's bill providing for revocation of automobile registration plates when owners fail to meet their excise tax obligations.

Undoubtedly the measure will impose hardships, and they are to be regretted. But the hardships will be small in comparison with the grief and humiliation caused by the old system which permitted constables and deputies to arrest delinquent taxpayers and to charge as much as fifteen dollars for collecting a five-dollar debt.

Bill collecting has been too long a profitable business for a favored few in Massachusetts. This and other drastic laws are needed to stop it.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON May 7.

THERE is a naivety about Mr Roosevelt which disarms suspicion.

This probably explains why the President can get away with things for which other Presidents would be called sharply to account.

For example, at the very time the President was deploring the fact that the House Rules Committee had blocked a special order for the consideration of his pet Wages and Hours Bill, White House heat was being turned on that identical committee with a view to having it back the Cartwright Roads Bill which the President does not want.

Just why the President doesn't favor that bill isn't exactly clear. It provides for an appropriation of $238,000,000 annually for two years, 1940 and 1941, and hence ought to be right up the spending spree alley.

Incidentally, the Rules Committee which refused right of way to the Wage Bill ignored White House pressure on the other measure, and granted a special rule for the Cartwright Bill.

• • •

MR. ROOSEVELT'S naivety enables him to chide the Rules Committee for refusing a green light for legislation put in by ignoring of the fact that it is an open secret at the Capital that he has frequently used the Rules Committee to stop legislation that a majority in the House wanted, but which he did not care for.

Wages and hours obtained the required 218 names without great difficulty. This probably will bring the bill to a vote on May 24.

And if brought to a vote it may pass. But Mr. Roosevelt's troubles will not be over. The Senate having passed a bill of its own, unless it will accept the House bill, which is highly improbable, the two will have to go to conference.

One Word Led To Another

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The Trailer Gazette

Arizona is derived from Arizonac, meaning small and Zona, meaning place. Which means small springs and that's the Papago Indians knew something about the Model T Detroit F. O. B.

Every year the state produces 310,000 ounces of gold and 8,000,000 ounces of silver. The gold goes under Fort Knox and the silver into back teeth.

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado is 200 miles long, 12 miles wide and one mile deep. Whatever it is it certainly is a good start for something. Maybe a cellar for one of Farley's cheap post-office systems. Might have been a lot deeper if the WA funds hadn't run out.

There are 43,726 Indians residing in Arizona, mostly Apaches, Navahoes and Hopis. The Grand Canyon has been eroded by the action of centuries of rain and hydraulic friction, so you can see what is liable to happen if you go off on a trip and leave the water running. The Indians once owned the entire state of Arizona and could get it back again any time they cared to foreclose on their second mortgages. But the Indian is not so cruel as his white brother. He doesn't crowd you for wampum.

The Arizona folk are proud of their native state. And after looking it over we are inclined to believe there are extenuating circumstances.

Congressman Martin Hits One-Party Rule

The Boston Evening American today presents the third of a series of exclusive articles disclosing the views of Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro, on important matters now before the nation.

In his discussion Friday, Congressman Martin said the Hull trade treaties not only menace American wage-earners, but threaten the financial security of the country.

The bugaboo of "one-man government" stalks the halls of the Capitol and the corridors of the Senate and House office buildings in Washington.

Veteran political leaders, both Democratic and Republican, however, are inclined to take all this hobgoblin talk not too seriously.

"The greater danger—if you can call the other any real danger at all," Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro told this reporter, "is in single PARTY government.

"That has been our trouble. With only 16 Republicans against 76 Democrats in the Senate, and with only 90 Republicans against 328 Democrats in the House, we have had virtually single-party rule with little or no effective opposition.

"That is an unhealthful condition.

"Politics entirely aside, a divided Congress is better—better for the country—than a lop-sided one.

Congressman Martin

"Except in moments of great stress, it is impossible to believe that all of the people of the United States think alike.

"The present House is an example of what I mean. Here you have a ratio, roughly, of four Democrats to one Republican.

"Do you believe that four out of every five persons in the United States are agreed in ANY THING?

"No, we've all got our OWN ideas on many subjects nowadays. I suspect.

"Now, a divided Congress is best because in a divided Congress ideas get free play. With a lop-sided Congress, you get a 'steam-roller' effect.

"Instead of objections—valid objections and there always are bound to be valid objections, because no program is perfect—instead of objections being ironed out, they're 'steam-rollered' out.

"As a matter of fact, you've GOT no objection—no VOICE. And that's bad—bad, even, for the Party in power. It's never good for anyone, an individual or a political Party, never to hear a word of effective criticism, always to have everything their own sweet way.

"Fortunately, I think the country is awakening to the danger—the undesirability—of a set-up such as this.

"'One-man government?' A dictatorship? No, I don't think that that can happen here. THAT isn't the danger.

"THE REAL DANGER, AS I SEE IT, IS IN LOP-SIDED GOVERNMENT.

"You might possibly get a government so lop-sided, so especially representative of one class or division or section of the people, that the other side—the 'left outs'—would rebel.

"Maybe you'd get a 'strong man' taking advantage of the situation, then, to set himself up as a dictator or something—but I think not. Not in this country.

"I don't think our government can go THAT lop-sided. I think you're going to find that out this November. I think you'll find that the next Congress is going to be materially different from this one.

"After all, the REAL POWER still reposes in the people. There are quite a few members of Congress who are going to be beaten. NO, Congressman, you're all through. They aren't going to come back next year because they've got to ask the PEOPLE to send them back, and I very much suspect the people aren't going to do it.

"I think the people WANT an effective opposition to the New Deal. I KNOW they want their own interests taken care of. The people of each Congressional district want THEIR Congressman to take care of THEIR interests.

"You may be for or against the New Deal, but one thing I think, you're not.

"YOU'RE NOT, IF YOU'RE THE AVERAGE AMERICAN CITIZEN, JUST GOING TO GO ALONG WITH ANY PROGRAM.

"If the program's a good one—swell! But if it isn't, you want to yell your head off—AND YOU WANT TO BE LISTENED TO, AND YOU WANT TO HAVE SOMETHING DONE ABOUT IT.

"There's been a lot of yelling, but some of our members of Congress haven't done much listening to it and certainly haven't done much of anything about it. They're the fellows I don't think are coming back.

"There are some other members of Congress—Democratic members as well—WHO HAVE been doing some listening. And some of them are beginning to think maybe they'd better DO something about it, too.

"That's why we have hopes.

"If we can switch just 70 seats in Congress over to the Republican side this November, we'll have enough Democrats who are beginning to listen with us to make the opposition really constructive, representative and effective.

"'One-man' government or 'one-party' government—I don't think the people of this country want either one.

"WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT IS AN EFFECTIVE VOICE, DAY BY DAY, IN THE AFFAIRS OF THEIR GOVERNMENT—THE AFFAIRS THAT AFFECT THEM.

"There's been a lot of talk about 'dictators'—a lot of talk about what 'can' or 'can't happen here.' But the PROOF of the pudding is in the eating.

"Congress still runs the country, and the people still elect the members of Congress. YOU'RE the dictator. All YOU have to do is send men to Congress who will listen to YOU and do what YOU want them to do."

Girl About Town -:- by Betty Di Pesa

WHEN'S a beer can not a beer can? No, we're not playing riddles. But we just heard about a new use for the innocent "tin."

To the ingenious Harvard boys belongs credit for discovering the versatility of the malt container. It seems the lads are partial to the beverage and, in the due course of time, accumulate an imposing number of the round vessels it comes in. So with the Spring of year and the racing season on, the shy dudes open the "Harvard Beer Can Jockey" and conduct "Beer Can Derbies."

Betty Di Pesa

The course is located at Mt. Auburn and Plympton streets in Cambridge, and the races are held on Sunday. Just any warm, sunny Sunday.

The particular technique used in the fleet is the kick. Each owner of a beer-can "stable" kicks his particular can to a start. Much depends upon owner. He must consider speed, direction, etc.

The event, now becoming a Harvard tradition, is carried out with no less decorum than the more ordinary horse race. There is a judge and a starter. Proper burlo music is furnished by someone's phonograph to signify near-starting time of race. Pari-mutuel betting is held, but more or less in private of course. (Because there is the slight matter of the Cambridge police.) Bets are comparatively small, although they have been known to go as high as 50 cents.

BLUE-STOCKINGED BOSTON has evidently changed its hose for a different hue. At least that tale would seem to prove so. John K. Howard is the latest.

Howard is president of the New England Museum of Natural History. And he complains that staid, old cultured Boston is not "Natural History Minded" at all!

"As a result, the museum has taken a nose dive that has pretty nearly closed its doors," he says.

Mr. Howard further reveals that $30,000 was spent in the recent "face-lifting" on the building on Boylston street.

The institution, second oldest of its kind in the country, has suffered because of competition with Harvard Museum of Natural History and an outmoded technique of exhibition. That is the president's opinion.

But with Harvard, ranking in excellence in advanced students only and the Boston museum being modern in its presentation, Mr. Howard is optimistic and believes the new museum Natural Museum Minded.

IT ISN'T every day that we get a chance to praise a newspaper man. But it's a novel combining of careers even in a day when newspaper careers are common. We're referring to the case of Dwight Davis, market-man newspaper reporter.

Davis always had a yen to be a news reporter. Like the little boy who wants to be a fireman when he grows. But investigation showed the market business offered a more substantial income. So Davis forewent the typewriter for the store counter, but satisfied his hunger for Printer's Ink by serving as correspondent for the Arena Mater.

SHOPPING FOR SUMMER DRESSES. If you want to be gay as the season, the India print dandies at $10.95 are for you. For the set are the Martha Gay dresses finely embodied in cloth. The Buff Up Blouses are also new. They come in the natural buff that is so popular. You may find all these on the fourth floor at Filene's.

Air Censors -:- by Hugh S. Johnson

WASHINGTON At the Town Hall on April 28 Mr. David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, stuck his neck out, protesting any tendency toward federal censorship of radio programs as a dangerous interference with the constitutional guaranty of free press and free speech, just as Mr. William Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, had done some weeks before.

General Johnson

He cited the fact that whether it be the great radio chains or small individual radio stations they must go before the Federal Communications Commission to have their licenses renewed every six months.

If that means that when these great public conveniences come to that dreadful bar of justice, they can be wiped out of existence merely because that political, partisan and dogmatic body hasn't approved of something said or sung in the preceding half year, what becomes of freedom of speech in one of the most effective media of speech that civilization has invented since the printing press and the astonishing development of newspaper services in the past few years?

Mr. Sarnoff was not as emphatic as this, but I'll tell you what becomes of it. IT GOES WITH THE WIND. [illegible] saying what he did say, Mr. Payne overstated Mr. Sarnoff.

I DON'T AGREE with those who say that the radio is a [illegible] of new papers. I think it's a feeder of newspaper and greatly increases their prestige, advertisement and circulation.

Of all the Commissioners my sympathy has been with Mr. Payne. There are those within that commission that need the light of day, but in respect to which Mr. Payne's position would stand any inquiry. It pains me to crack him. But apparently when a man gets "airs" with the clubs of bureaucratic impudence nothing can tame him.

MR. SARNOFF didn't accuse anybody of attempting to censor programs. He merely quoted the law that the Commission is sworn to enforce specifically withholding from it any power of censorship whatever. It is a fact that Chairman McNinch threatened censorship in connection with the Mae West Charlie McCarthy program.

Mr. Payne seems to plead guilty to an effort to exercise censorship. He attacks Mr. Sarnoff for not apologizing for that program of "arrogance" in protesting against radio censorship.

I hold no brief for many radio programs. Jazz, swing and such seem to me as moronic as they do to Mr. Payne. Many other features nauseate me. But I know plenty of intelligent young people who seem to eat up that kind of stuff. Maybe Mr. Payne and I are living in older age.

The laws against lewdness sufficiently take care of really objectionable publications as they do in the newspapers. The rest is a matter of taste.

Certainly the two-by-four board which Mr. Payne adorns has not been set up for this purpose. If it has any [illegible] on this point it is up to Congress to [illegible]

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON This week Josephus Daniels celebrated 50 years of happy married life, and on May 18 he commemorates the day in Washington, North Carolina, on which he first came into a hectic, impatient and intolerant world to contribute 76 years of serene and unselfish service.

Josephus Daniels

The story of Josephus Daniels is a success story, written not in terms of wealth but in terms of veneration and public esteem. Daniels' father died when Josephus was only two years old, and his mother opened a millinery store to support her three sons. From this Daniels rose to become Secretary of the Navy in the World War Cabinet and to be [illegible] longer than any other man in history.

A commoner like Bryan, for whose presidential campaigns he directed the publicity, Daniels has the saving grace of a sense of humor.

The early days in the Cabinet were not comfortable for Daniels. A man of humble origin, he undertook to reform the Navy in the interest of the common man.

There was also general criticism that he was unqualified for office. "What can a newspaper editor know about ships?" was the question hurled at him.

The question of Daniels' competency became more serious when the United States entered the war, and within a few months a congressional investigation was ordered of the conduct of the Navy.

But by this time the record was so impressive the Navy having accomplished the amazing task of creating a "bridge of ships" to transport troops across the Atlantic—that the findings of the inquiry were a personal triumph for Secretary Daniels.

"SEPTEMBER MORN"—Through his triumphs and his trials, the personal affection which "Josephus" held for "Addie," the lady who now marks 50 years at his side, was as constant as it was touching. Perhaps it was built as much upon a sense of humor, mutually enjoyed, as upon anything else. At least Addie is as ready to tell stories on Josephus as he is to tell stories on her.

One that comes out of the family chit-chat is what she calls "the September Morn story." Daniels was invited by a society of naval architects to address a dinner in New York. He took Mrs. Daniels along, staying at the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Next morning when he prepared to take a bath, he was unable to conclude the new-fangled stream at the head of the bathtub. Before he knew it, the tub was overflowing. In desperation, Daniels called to his wife, "Ring for the boy." Mrs. Daniels pushed a button, but a maid came bursting into the room.

"You should have seen Josephus," Addie says. "There was a big armchair in the corner of the bedroom, and he ran and hid behind it. Obviously, over there, he looked just like September Morn."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MOTHERS' DAY tomorrow—with hardly a heart but's turning to the thought of some dear face.

A girl's face, perhaps, as flower-fresh and innocent as the downy head that lay in her arms.

Or an aging face, wrinkled and gently wise, its eyes deep pools of peace.

Or, perhaps, that face which only the aching heart may see down the long aisles of years—a secret shrine whose deathless love still feeds our hurts and fears.

Elsie Robinson

MOTHERS' DAY! MOTHER LOVE, THE GENTLEST YET THE MOST POTENT POWER ON EARTH!

And yet in these strange times, when [illegible] even Motherhood from its cot and [illegible] making birth more than, not the [illegible] woman and a man planning the "project" of [illegible] on a par with raising pigs and corn.

"BONUS BABIES!"—there's a phrase! What a riot Grandma'd raise! "FEDERAL PAYMENT IF YOU HAVE A CHILD!" Is that program absolutely wild? Or a way up out of it?

ARLENE WEBER votes—"IT'S NUTS!" Listen in! Storm or grin. Then say if you're mad as hops or think this notion is the TOPS.

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"IF AND WHEN THIS GOVERNMENT HAS TO PAY ME TO HAVE A BABY, I'M GOING TO FIND A NEW PLACE TO LIVE. FOR IT WILL MEAN THAT PERSONAL PRIDE AND INITIATIVE HAVE COME TO THEIR END IN THESE UNITED STATES.

"The greatest things in life can't be bought or commanded. One must want to do them, for himself, and be willing to do them [illegible] ously, eagerly, at any cost. Motherhood is one of those things. Yes, Motherhood does come high these days. [illegible] you and me, who are living on almost nothing, know it. But it's worth it!

"People have had babies in this country before without government [illegible] allies, or doctors, or hospitals. Get married! Have your babies! You'll get through it somehow, if you want to bad enough. We did. To the government we say—'GET OUT! THERE ARE STILL A FEW THINGS WE CAN DO ALONE!'"

"Arlene Weber, 23 years,
"East 62nd street,
"Chicago, Ill."

THERE, to my mind, is as grand an exhibition of TRUE AMERICAN spunk and pride as ever went over the top in a front line trench or starved at Valley Forge!

Yes, I know my approval will be criticized. Plenty!

Many will say that I'm denying poor parents and babies a chance.

Many will quote the Mothers' Pensions and Baby Bonuses in Russia, Germany, Italy.

But I can only say that there is more to Motherhood than the oily meals and grocery bills.

And no Government can, or should try to provide that thing which makes a REAL MOTHER, A REAL FATHER, A REAL HOME...Namely, COURAGE, SELF-RESPECT, FIGHTING FAITH.

My mother was a poor mother, as was practically every western pioneer. I was a poor mother when my turn came. BUT I WOULD AS SOON HAVE FED MY BABY POISON AS REARED IT ON A GOVERNMENT BONUS!

And so, whatever your opinion, Starter I salute you, ARLENE WEBER, SPEAKING FOR THE YOUNG MOTHERS OF AMERICA ...AND FOR THAT PROUD BUT INVISIBLE HOST WHO BEQUEATHED TO THEM THEIR INVINCIBLE SPIRITUAL HERITAGE OF PRIDE!

March of Events

By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

AT A RECENT fair held near Amsterdam, Holland, a farmer picked up a couple of landscapes for 5 dutch cents apiece.

An art dealer stopped at the farmer's house for a bit of cheese and a glass of milk. He happened to look at the landscapes on the wall.

He nearly collapsed. They were by that greatest of modern painters of light, that genius of the luminous—Vincent Van Gogh.

They are worth about $20,000 each.

Van Gogh, dirt-poor all his life, and insane part of the time, was not only a great painter but he was a "mystical proletarian," actually living with coal-miners at one time.

In Paris he threatened another famous painter, Gaugin, with a knife, was seized with a paroxysm of repentance, cut off his ear and sent it to Gaugin.

He painted magnificently while still "insane" and finally shot himself.

If you read the life of Vincent Van Gogh you will thank God that [illegible] "an everyday person" and not a genius.

THE Italian-English treaty and the French-Italian treaty make it look to me as if the history of the World War was to be repeated in case of another European outbreak.

Italy tore up her treaty with Germany and Austria in 1915 and sided with the Allies.

Now Mussolini will have a treaty with Germany, England and France with the Germans in the Italian-controlled South Tyrol muttering about a return to Germany".

On the other hand, Germany, which used to howl before the war about the "Yellow Peril," is now hitched up with Japan, the forefront of the "Yellow Peril".

I think the only really smart dictator is Mussolini. In case of trouble he'd rather have as his side-kicks England and France than a pact with Germany and a [illegible] thing on the powder keg of revolution.

And don't forget that the two Italians who in 1915 were most instrumental in breaking Italy's treaty with Germany were Giolitti [illegible] and MUSSOLINI!

Final Call for Modern Stories of Adventure

Last call, all you Marco Polos, if you want to share in the 75 prizes of cash and theater tickets offered by the Boston Evening American and Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

To win a prize, answer the following question in 50 words or less:

"What has been your most thrilling adventure while traveling?"

It needn't be a [illegible] piece. Just some experience which occurred while on a trip.

The prizes are First, $25; second $10; third, $5; fourth, $3 and fifth $2. The following five prizes are $1 each, while the next 25 winners will each receive a pair of guest tickets to Loew's State or Orpheum theaters.

All letters received with a postmark later than Monday midnight, May 9 will not be accepted.

Address letters to "Marco Polo Contest Editor," Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Jackie Cooper Wins Leads in Three Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 7—The Jackie Coogan law suit to recover his own money from his mother and step-father seems to have created a new interest in youthful stars. Jackie Cooper, the first child actor to follow the other Jackie in movie fame, has a lineup ready for him, when he returns May 16 from personal appearances, that will keep him busy for many months. He goes into "Streets of New York" and "That Old Gang of Mine" for Monogram, and after that will carry on the much disputed romance with Deanna Durbin in "That Certain Age."

It was Monogram who was credited with reviving Jackie from obscurity. When M-G-M did not take up his option, he retired at the ripe old age of fourteen. After his voice started changing, and he reached the awkward age, everyone thought he was through, but now Jackie Cooper, the young man is just as attractive as Jackie Cooper, the child.

Without doubt filmland's long-distance commuter of all times will be John Halliday, who has sold his house in Beverly Hills and bought one in Honolulu, where he plans to live, coming here only on a week's notice for pictures. John goes into "That Certain Age" as Deanna Durbin's father. Irene Rich is to get a contract today for the role of the mother, and it will be interesting to see a picture.

The rumor pops up again that Warners are going to lend Claire Trevor away from 20th Century-Fox. At first it was denied, with the home studio insisting they had no intention of relinquishing her contract. But now, through mutual agreement an arrangement is more than gossip that Claire will move her make-up case from Westwood to Burbank just about the time she marries Clark Andrews in July.

Claire should feel at home, too, at Warners, where she recently completed "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" and is now appearing in "The Valley of the Giants."

Chatter in Hollywood: Sonja Henie, one of the sweetest girls in Hollywood and extremely modest for all of her success, has taken Jack Dunn under her wing. They have been out three or four times in the last few weeks. Jack appeared here with Sonja in a breathtaking skating exhibition before either of them had movie contracts. Then Sonja was signed by Darryl Zanuck and Jack by Universal, and they have went to movies with other people.

Sonja has soared to the top and today ranks as one of the best money making stars while Jack hasn't had a chance yet to prove what he can do. There is a rumor that he may get his big chance in Sonja's next picture.

Picking the winner of the Derby isn't Dave Rubber's only job in Kentucky, where he has been touring the state shooting Technicolor "atmosphere" for his next production, "Kentucky." So far, only Don Ameche is set for this racing yarn of the Blue Grass country, but nothing would surprise us less if Mrs. Jock Whitney accepted the femme lead. This is the story Darryl Zanuck interviewed her about, and since the popular "Liz" is one of the outstanding sportswomen of the country, and mad about horses (which she races herself), he couldn't have hatted her with a role closer to her heart.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Mrs. Casey Robinson, wife of the scenario writer, in Good Samaritan Hospital with a broken wrist and bruises received when her horse stumbled in a steeplechase; Mrs. Zeppo Mark, another horsewoman who is in a cast after a bad fall from a horse she was thinking of buying for the Marwick Stables; Ronald Colman, in rags and a long grey beard, wasn't recognized by a soul on the Paramount lot when he went to make advance stills for "If I Were King"; Merle Oberon reaches here Monday ready to start "Gaslight" with Gary Cooper. That's all for today. See you Monday!

'Jezebel' Tops New Olympia Bill

"Jezebel," magnolia-scented romance of the old South with Bette Davis providing a large dash of paprika opens today at the Washington street Olympia Theater. On the same program, "Bulldog Drummond's Peril," latest adventure in the popular Drummond series, features John Barrymore and Louise Campbell.

Theater Party For Premiere

The Civil Liberties Committee of Massachusetts have arranged a large theater party for the Boston premiere of the musical revue, "Pins and Needles," at the Shubert, Monday evening. Additional seats for this performance can be obtained at the box office.

The reputation of this Labor Stage production is well known locally and the advance seat sale assures a fine two-week engagement for this band of talented youngsters, who are making theatrical history this season.

Following the local engagement, "Pins and Needles" goes to Chicago for a summer run and will jump to the Pacific Coast.

'Marco Polo' Most Lavish Of Films

By PEGGY DOYLE

Samuel Goldwyn's most lavishly produced picture in a season in which he has specialized in extravagant productions is "The Adventures of Marco Polo," starring Gary Cooper, which is now showing at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

This celluloid biography of the famous Venetian merchant and explorer of the thirteenth century has a cast of 5000 backgrounds ranging from the Persian Gulf and the Gobi Desert to the court of Kublai Kahn, a dashing six feet two here who is an able pedagogue as well as an ardent lover and the most lurid plot since silent pictures. It should be big box office even though M. Goldwyn's research experts have neglected the history-books.

Villian of this medieval melodrama is Ahmed, a treacherous prime minister to the Chinese ruler, Kublai Kahn. As Basil Rathbone plays him, Ahmed is a consummate thirteenth century cookie whose life's ambition is to gain the throne and marry Kublai Kahn's lovely daughter, Princess Kukuchin, who has been affianced since birth to the Persian ruler.

Even before he is subtly warned by being given a tour of Ahmed's elaborate torture chambers, Marco Polo has sized up the situation. Polo, the world's first traveling salesman, has arrived from Venice after a most hazardous voyage via hot desert sands, mountain avalanches and a sinking ship.

* * *

Ahmed, realizing Polo's menace, arranges to get him out of the country to the lands ruled over by the bandit, Kaidu. At a strategic moment, when Kublai Kahn has signed over his kingdom to Ahmed to save his daughter's life and the Princess Kukuchin is about to become the prize in her emperor's bride, Kaidu, at Polo's instigation attacks Pekin. It is a victory for Kaidu's forces. Kublai Kahn is returned to his throne. Marco Polo wins the beautiful princess. More than that, he is responsible for the signing of the world's first international trade agreement.

Sigrid Gurie, Brooklyn born Norwegian who is the screen's American film debut in this picture is a lovely creature with Kublai to Cecil hands. How well she can act is her secret for she is far called upt to be much more beautiful.

Lee Tong as usual is a magnificent menace. Ernest Truex as Polo's quarrelsome companion does his usual best.

Patricia Ellis and Jack Hubert are co-starred in the companion feature, Comedy Girls. Story of a young newspaper woman who loses her job but wins the heart of a chorus boy.

Travelogue At So. Station

By popular request, South Station Theater is again showing Picturesque Banff and Lake Louise, beautiful Technicolor travelogue. Banff, situated right in the Canadian Rockies, is one of America's loveliest and most popular resorts. James A. Fitzpatrick, travel authority, produced this travel film which should interest vacation-minded New Englanders.

G-Men Film At the Columbia

"Vanishing Gangsters," a fast moving film depicting G-man combat, leaps against the nation's public enemies rounded up or killed in the drive since J. Edgar Hoover began his war against the Colombian today. It will be shown continuously from 11 a.m. to 11

'Tom Sawyer' At Scollay, Modern

The Mark Twain classic comes across on the new screen program at the Scollay and Modern theaters. Co-featured on this program is Prisoner Nurse, starring Henry Wilcoxon and Madge Marsh.

Tom Kitty, the American 12 year old boy from the Bronx for whom a talent wide search was conducted, is the typical American boy who portrays Tom Sawyer for the screen. Jackie Moran is Huckleberry Finn, May Robson is Aunt Polly, Walter Brennan is Muff Potter and Guinn Williams is Injun Joe. Victor Jory, a screen veteran of other important child and adult pictures make up the impressive cast.

"Prison Nurse" is said to be an accurate and realistic portrayal of prison life, and the problems which those in charge of prisons have to face.

Liquids' Use In Bread Making

THERE ARE several different liquids which may be used in bread making. The liquid may be water, milk, evaporated milk, potato water or a mixture of these. The stiffness of the dough is determined by the proportion of liquid to flour. Ordinarily, a softer dough makes the lightest product

Translation Altered Story Of Nazi Seaman

Translation of German Into English altered sentences made last March 21 by Capt. Georg Bauder of the German steamer Adolf Leonhardt and published in the Boston Evening American it was learned today.

Not wishing to add to opposition to Capt. Bauder the Evening American today says the original version of the interview with him ordered suppressed by Hitlerites.

Capt. Bauder said that 75 per cent of the German people are united in the Hitler party, that Hitler was elected in 1933 by 99 per cent of the people and that the rest of the population has become convinced "through Hitler's words and deeds."

He said also that in 1933 many had to choose between the Nazis and Communists and that in Hitler's party there are workers of means and capitalists.

The ship captain asserted that Hitler was a necessity for a prepared United German borders that "peaceful conditions prevail in Europe and that in the event of war Russia could not send her soldiers out of the country because of the fear of internal uprisings."

When questioned, merely pronounced people had improved under the workers' movement with lands cut in half and [illegible] compared to conditions.

As to conditions of the people Capt. Bauder declared that [illegible] had been good to engineers and officers of the crew of the Adolf Leonhardt.

'Helium Gas Useless In War'--Eckener

Karl H. Von Wiegand, veteran correspondent who has just completed a 20,000-mile aerial survey of the Orient, today interviewed his old friend Dr. Hugo Eckener, with whom he made the only round the world airship flight in history in 1929

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—Military, naval and air experts of Europe and, with a single exception so far as I know, the practical statesmen in their views and opinions that the airship, which we had used by Dr. Eckener in helium gas, could today be taken seriously as a weapon of war in view of the great development of war planes.

"If American military experts alone take a different view I can only say that I sincerely believe they are mistaken. The Zeppelins of today are no instrument of war and cannot seriously be considered as such."

K. H. Von Wiegand

Dr. Hugo Eckener, world famous aerial [illegible] from the S.S. Hansa from Germany to make a personal appeal in Washington for the American non-burnable helium gas to fill the new Zeppelin now ready in Friedrichshafen.

The new Zeppelin is to replace the Hindenburg which met tragic [illegible] when burning at Lakehurst last May. He told me:

"It now rests wholly in the hands of America whether the science of lighter-than-air craft and airship transportation, to the development of which I have devoted my life, shall be eliminated."

Dr. Hugo [illegible] of [illegible] a vessel no man has to escape the [illegible] of lighter than air.

If Washington believes that by withholding helium for the new Zeppelin the government is striking a blow at Adolf Hitler the authorities are very much mistaken. Hitler has no use for Zeppelins and not any personal interest in Zeppelins. Dr. Eckener will go to Washington tomorrow. He will have a talk with Secretary Ickes and probably also see President Roosevelt. At least he hopes that the President will see him.

Marathon Post Parades Ended | Suffolk Speeds Up Its Races

By JACK CONWAY

SUFFOLK DOWNS has gained many friends during its present meeting by running off its racing program without any unnecessary delays.

There have not been any long, tiresome post parades or tedious gaps between races. Such unpopular practices are indulged in by tracks that are more interested in squeezing a few extra dollars into the mutuel machines than they are in giving good racing.

Mr. Boston

In Maryland and in New York, where they have had successful racing for years, there have not been Marathon post parades and other flagrant commercial practices in connection with the conduct of the races. The track owners have felt that if they furnished top racing and didn't permit delays, that people would get educated to wager early. Such has been the case.

Under the new system at Suffolk Downs the fans are betting early. There are only a few tickets purchased during the two minutes before the races are off.

As a result of the new system at Suffolk Downs the eighth race is usually over about 6 o'clock. This gives race goers an opportunity to have dinner and go some place at night if they wish to do so.

When an eight race card does not end until 6:30 to 7 o'clock, the evening is destroyed for the fans. Friend husband also finds a chilly welcome upon his arrival home.

One of the reasons why baseball has done so well down through the years is because it tries to get its games over by 5 o'clock. This enables the fans to arrive home for an early dinner. As a result, thousands of people in this country seldom miss a ball game during the major league seasons.

When races are delayed to aid the mutuel handle, it over-emphasizes the commercial angle of horse racing. Of course the mutuel machines are necessary if the tracks are to pay expenses and make a reasonable return on invested capital, but they should not be permitted to be the dominant feature of the turf game.

Now that races are getting over early Suffolk Downs will find that many of the same people will visit the track each day.

There are millions to be made by race tracks, and they will find if they play fair with the public that the goose that is laying the golden eggs will not have a short life. The present Suffolk Downs policy of eliminating delays will help keep the goose alive in East Boston.

Wrestling's Battle of the Century

THE STEVE Casey-Yvon Robert world's heavyweight championship mat bout at the Garden on May 20 is being billed a Battle of the Century. There have been few bouts in recent years that have attracted as much public interest as this match. I would class it with the second Sonnenberg-Lewis bout, the O'Mahony-Londos and O'Mahony-George battles.

The winner of the join between Casey and Robert will be the undisputed champion of the world. The American Wrestling Association recognizes Casey as title holder as a result of a number of trick rulings. Personally I consider Robert champion. He has never lost his championship in the ring, and the American Wrestling Association not any other athletic body can not take it away from him by a silly ruling.

I like the feeling of bitterness that exists between Casey and Robert. This will mean it will be a furious bout.

Athletics can stand hostility between stars.

Baseball will benefit from the fight between George Tebbetts of the Tigers and Ben Chapman of the Red Sox. Baseball fans have tired of the friendly spirit between existing players on different teams that has grown up in recent years. One would sometimes think the players on the various major league clubs were members of the same college fraternity.

Tebbetts and Chapman are not sorry they let their punches fly, and say they would do the same thing over again today if the occasion called for such action.

There have been cases in boxing where seconds have been suspended for using rough language and for occasionally taking a poke at the opposition. Fighting is a red-blooded game, and boxing commissions should not expect managers and seconds to act like Sunday school teachers as they direct a stirring battle from the corner.

Much of the color in sport comes from clashes between celebrities. Wrestling has never had a more bitter feud than the one that exists between Casey and Robert.

* * *

Frenchman Claimed Celt's Forfeit

ONE CANNOT support Robert in his recent action of claiming Casey's $5000 forfeit when an infected knee prevented the Irishman from going through with a title bout. Robert was probably burning up at the time and demanded Casey's forfeit, but such things are not usually done when an athlete has been unfortunate in getting hurt.

Robert tries to save his face with the public by charging Casey wasn't injured. Yvon knew this was a weak defense. The records at St. Elizabeth Hospital show Casey underwent a serious knee operation, and was confined to the hospital for eight days. Robert cannot get back of the record.

I understand Eddie Quinn, Robert's manager, saw the scar on Steve's knee while the latter was training.

"It looks as if Yvon pulled a 'boner' in claiming Casey's forfeit," Quinn confided to a friend.

The $5000 forfeits in the coming bout will also ride as a side bet as a result of a stand taken by Casey. He wants to make Robert pay through the nose.

Bell Clout Ends In Double Play

By JOE CASHMAN

No other club in either major league has been altered as drastically since last season as the St. Louis Browns.

The Mound City entry has a new manager in Sergeant Charles "Gabby" Street, two new coaches and a dozen new players, five of whom are in the regular lineup.

But, despite the many changes in personnel, the owners can point to no improvement in the showing of the outfit as yet.

Sergeant Street vows however, it won't be long before his lads are playing the Atlas role. In fact, the grizzled "Gabby" sees a possibility of his merry men landing in the money.

"Gabby" Street

So we must take it that the invaders are much classier than they shaped up as being in their first team appearance.

For on that occasion they did everything contrary to Hoyle to send our old pal, Boisterous "Buck" Newsom, down to a 7 to 3 defeat at the hands of a Red Sox lineup minus Manager Joe Cronin and Outfielder Ben Chapman.

They tried to advance from first to third on infield rollers; they ran into a double play on a smash off the outfield wall; they were charged with four errors.

The only unassisted double play was one for the books.

Beau Bell hit a drive which gave every promise of going over the leftfield wall as it left the bat but finally, arrested by a strong wind, landed in the glove Joe Vosmik had upstretched against the parapet.

But before it landed in the glove it hit the wall.

Eventually, Kress raced home from third but Mills, neglecting to move from second to third, was forced, and so long did McQuinn delay before trying to advance from first to second that he, too was nipped.

Kelley Favored For Time Prize At Southie

The Irish-American A. A. 10-mile handicap road race will start at 2:30 today at the clubhouse on Broadway at C street and run through various sections of South Boston out to Old Colony boulevard and return to the clubhouse.

Johnny Kelley

Leading the pack of 106 entries is that of Johnny Kelley of Arlington, winner of the B. A. A. Marathon in 1935 and third place winner this year. Kelley is a favorite to cop the time prize.

However, Johnny will get plenty of stiff competition from George L. Durgin, United Shoe Machinery A. A., Beverly, and Michael Mansuilla of the Brockton "Y," who finished sixth in the recent B. A. A. Marathon.

The Bradford Catholic Club of Bradford has entered a full team, and look like a dangerous threat to other team entries.

Outstanding among the other entries are Charlie Welch, Roxbury; Noble Ray, Belmont; Fred Hooton, North Medford; William Simons, Needham Heights; William Malloy, United Shoe Machinery A. A.

Great Roundup At Mayfair Monday

The gentlemen behind the scenes of Boston's major league ball clubs will all be guests of the Boston Evening American at the third annual Night Sports Final dinner at the Club Mayfair Monday night.

Tom Yawkey, president of the Red Sox, Bob Quinn, president of the Bees; Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, and Johnny Quinn, popular young secretary of the Bees, will all be on hand.

These famous personages, together with stars from the Red Sox and the Indians, will give the national pastime great representation at the dinner.

But baseball will be only one of many fields of endeavor in evidence there.

Ann Marsters, who has interviewed practically every sports headliner in the country, will take over a familiar role when she questions one of the celebrated guests.

Jack Conway, sports editor of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser; Austen Lake, brilliant columnist, and Joe Cashman, baseball authority, will also be very much in the limelight.

Lake will interview Bob Feller, the most publicized young hurler in baseball. Feller, incidentally, is slated to oppose the Red Sox tomorrow.

Sports alone would make the evening a standout. But there will be leading figures in public life and the theater present.

Ina Ray Hutton, Shep Fields and Lois Wilson will head the stars from stage, radio and screen who will add to the evening's gaiety.

The guests include:

Boxing—Jack Sharkey, Al McCoy, Sammy Fuller, Georgie Martin, Lou Brouillard, Ralph Zanelli and Rip Valenti.

Hockey—Art Ross.

Golf—Denny Shute.

Football—Pat Hanley.

Marathon—Leslie Pawson.

Public Life—Governor Charles F. Hurley, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Lt.-Governor Francis J. Kelley, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, Racing Commissioner Charles Connors, Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever and State Auditor Thomas A. Buckley.

Entertainment—Lois Wilson, Ina Ray Hutton, Shep Fields.

Park Loop Opening Monday

The Boston Park Department baseball leagues will open their 11th season Monday, when over 20,812 players, representing all grades from the midgets to the adult divisions, competing on 120 diamonds throughout the city, will start their quest for titles.

The official opening ceremonies will take place at Garvey Field, Neponset, in the top loop of 12 teams, with Dick Casey's defending champions meeting Bill Benson's St. Augustines.

Other openers in the top circuit that night find the two new Dorchester clubs, St. Ambrose and Wilson club, meeting at Roberts Field; the new Agnew club of Brighton traveling to the C. J. Lee grounds in Southie to play the McDonough team, formerly the Pere Marquettes; Brighton Civics vs. Hyde Park "Newsmen" at Smith Pond; Roslindale Town club against the Holy Name A. A., Fallon Field, and the Mass. Knitting Mills host at their new Fens, Stadium grounds to the Maddens of Roxbury.

Maine Team Favored in Quad Meet

By WALTER KILEY

College track gets a heavy play today.

Prominent on the New England program are the Harvard - Dartmouth dual meet at Hanover, N. H., and the quadrangular meet among Boston College, Northeastern, Maine and New Hampshire at the Heights.

F. Mascianica

The Crimson-Green affair, wherein the Dartmouths are slight favorites, will be concluded almost before the Heightsmen get underway.

Experts are predicting freely that the clan from Orono, Maine, will lift top honors, with the Eagles as runners-up over the other two rivals.

Once again Richard Gill, the Boston College captain, is looked upon as a sure headliner.

Gill, New England intercollegiate quarter-mile champion, who turned in a brilliant 47.6 performance at the Stadium a week ago, is favorite against George Quinn of New Hampshire and Frank Mascianica of Northeastern in the 440; and will be a stern contender against Quinn and Don Smith of Maine in the half-mile. He is also being backed to win the 220-yard dash.

STARTS GRID CAMP

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Benny Friedman, former all-America at Michigan, former professional football star and for the last four years head football coach at City College of New York, branched out in a new direction as he announced the establishment of a football summer school for boys.

The school will open its first month-long "term" on July 1, at Cheshire School, Cheshire, Conn.

It is intended primarily to teach youngsters how to handle themselves in order to avoid injury, with special instruction in field generalship and strategy for prospective varsity quarterbacks.

Friedman hopes to draw his pupils mainly from boys between the ages of 16 and 20.

Panther Creek Wilson Best

By DAVE WILSON
"Selections for Fast Track"

BEST BET—PANTHER CREEK, SIXTH

Panther Creek, an improved runner from the Texas stable of T. H. Heard, is our choice to capture to honors in the $7500 added Governor's Handicap, mile feature at Suffolk Downs today.

Panther Creek made a show of Higher Cloud, Clocks and other great sprinters in winning last Saturday's Plymouth Rock Handicap.

He's in again under the same impost—106 pounds, and the additional yardage will hold no terror for him.

Freddie Scheib, the outstanding rider in this sector, is again slated to have the mount.

FIRST RACE
Fredrick, Fair Time, Coya

FREDRICK was only a length off Lunsford in a six furlongs race run in 1:11 4-5 the other day, and he drops a single pound. FAIR TIME was beaten three full lengths by the top one in the above-mentioned race. COYA has a creditable Florida record.

SECOND RACE
Parity, Mariato, Move Faster

PARITY closed a tremendous gap to finish fifth in the sprint won by Idolatry, and the increased route of this number should prove right to his measure. MARIATO, 7 th to Erin's Son in his only start of the meeting, is descending the claiming ladder. MOVE FASTER, a dead-short fifth to Pay Rack, should improve.

THIRD RACE
Elyloe, Baby Way, Night Raven

ELYLEE, a fast-closing second to Crowning Glory in most recent race, should find this extended route down his alley. BABY WAY, a winner in Bowie competition, is credited with a mile trial in 1:41 4-5. NIGHT RAVEN, freshened since Florida, is reported fit.

FOURTH RACE
Victorious Ann, Fast Express, Highpool

VICTORIOUS ANN has been freshened since her successful Florida campaign, and she comes highly recommended by the clocker.

FAST EXPRESS was knocking right on the door in late Havre de Grace races. HIGHPOOL finished a creditable third to Galon Boy in his most recent essay.

FIFTH RACE
Higher Cloud, Stage Beauty, Buster Boy

HIGHER CLOUD, runner-up to Panther Creek in the Plymouth Rock, figures to run down STAGE BEAUTY. The latter is in under a feather of 99 pounds, and several brilliant trials indicate fitness. BUSTER BOY disliked the track in his last.

SIXTH RACE
Panther Creek, Clocks, War Minstrel

CLOCKS couldn't untrack himself in the heavy footing that prevailed in last Saturday's race. He's the early speed of the party and top horse PANTHER CREEK will have to catch. WAR MINSTREL is really the class horse of the race, but will have to improve many lengths off his dismal showing o' the other day even to crash the picture.

SEVENTH RACE
Lady Federal, Breezing Along, Motley

LADY FEDERAL third to Eddie H. on opening day, figures to tincan BREEZING ALONG in the seventh. The latter, freshened since Florida, is liked by some of the clockers. MOTLEY has the knack of surprising.

EIGHTH RACE
Erin's Sun, Four Spot, Patchpocket

ERIN'S SUN won his initial start of the current meeting so easily that it's impossible to go past him in searching for this winner. FOUR SPOT has worked well and may be along in time to head PATCHPOCKET. The latter is fast and faint-hearted.

Clocker Likes Good Flavor

By CLOCKER BILL SMITH

Good Flavor simply cantered home by five, wide open lengths to drub Rocky Margot and Dick Merrill recently. The J. S. Riley six-year-old looks like "cinch" to repeat that recent score in the seventh heat at Jamaica today. Good Flavor rates as the safest bet of the entire racing card.

Gay Boy III Born, Bred In Ireland

By DAVE WILSON

Had the South Bostonites been aware that Gay Boy III, second in the sixth race Friday, was born and bred in Ireland, that son of Walter Gay no doubt would have received a good play at the windows.

Gay Boy III was imported to this country by G. Stewart Preece. Taken under a hard drive, Gay Boy III held on gamely to take down second money and should improve next outing.

Jack McCarthy, the boxer-constable, is a daily visitor to the track . . . The Equality Division Handicaps scheduled for Friday failed to fill . . . Eddie Britt, the Redskins halfback from Lexington, visited the races Friday. Eddie expects to play professional baseball in Nova Scotia this summer . . . Bill Scully's Miss Engadine at least seems to be able to untrack herself and should improve off Friday's race.

George Clements, who is training the W. C. Johnson horses, is from Lynn and formerly rode around the New England fairs . . . Harry Brusie, trotting horse driver of other years, now training runners, is a daily visitor . . . Son Lyman is racing on the New York circuit this year.

* * *

Charley Stevenson still has that riding touch which always marks his New England efforts. His victory with Blue Flame Friday was worthy of comment . . . Among the younger riders, Harvey Kepler, who broke his maiden at the Agawam meeting a year ago, looks good. He rides at 104 pounds, is under contract to F. Hopkins.

Incompetent Trainers Injuring Racing

Licenses Granted Too Easily

By DAVE WILSON

If I were asked to differentiate between the racing now and the racing when I was a boy in Maryland, I would have to say that the only difference is in the officials, jockeys, trainers and owners.

Take it from me, there are too many shoemakers, ribbon clerks and ex-drugstore cowboys training horses. For one reason or another, the racing officials have been too lenient in granting trainer's licenses.

J. Fitzsimmons

Then again the stewards are not entirely to blame for this state of affairs. A certain amount of pressure can work wonders around certain race tracks.

Racing commissions have helped reduce these evils.

However, in the states where there were no racing commissions the sport suffered from the greediness of the highwaymen who promoted it.

The incompetence of a good many trainers accounts for the number of broken down horses you see campaigning around the race track.

It also accounts for the number of willing but incompetent riders there are today.

These trainers cannot condition their horses properly nor can they show their jockeys anything about the riding art, because what they don't know about conditioning horses and riding would take plenty of time to tell you.

CHANGE IN FORM

It is this same incompetence which accounts for the flip-flop in form horses make in shifting from one trainer to another. Not that it can always be taken as a barometer of a trainer's ability.

"Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, the man who conditioned Gallant Fox, Omaha, and who sent Fighting Fox postward in the Derby today, is without question one of the best trainers in the country, but Tom Smith, C. S. Howard's trainer, accomplished more with the Hard Tack colt than "Sunny Jim" was ever able to do.

As for the officials, there are not enough practical young horsemen getting an opportunity to officiate for the good of the game.

Unfortunately, certain race track owners don't want the fearless type of officials. They want officials who can be dictated to and yet demand that these officials have a good reputation.

They don't get officials like Tom Thorp often. Friend of rich and poor alike, to my mind Thorp is the outstanding official the turf has today, and I am glad he is in the stand at Suffolk Downs.

To show you the fear of cheating horsemen back of Thorp's ability, I will tell you of a little incident which took place at the Rockingham fall meeting in 1937.

As you may remember, Tom takes off on Saturdays during the football season to referee.

A certain horseman whose steeds are notoriously hot and cold came to the press box one day at the Rock and offered a member of the press a chance to win a good bet if he would find out for him if Tom was going to referee a football game in New York that particular Saturday.

He confessed he didn't dare try any of his "Here today, gone tomorrow" tactics with Tom in the stewards' stand.

Touching upon the owners of race horses, I would say there is as much difference between the average owner of today and the average owner of yesteryear as between night and day.

Of course we still have the Alfred G. Vanderbilts, the John Hay Whitneys, and the A. G. Vanderbilt the William C. Woodwards, but not so many of them as in the old days.

The breeder-owner is the staff of racing. When he ceases to exist, the sport will suffer trying days. The present trend of the sport seems to favor the claiming owner.

Somewhere in between, is the happy medium.

Both are needed if the sport is to prosper, but for the good of all concerned the breeder-owner should get just a little the best of it, for without breeding farms there would be no racing.

Van Mungo, Medwick Trade Called Off

By Associated Press

The boys had a deal all smoked up. Van Mungo's arm was going to St. Louis and Ducky Medwick's big bat would move to Brooklyn. The thing was supposed to be the biggest ivory swap in years.

All details were about ironed out and completed. Then something flopped—it was Van's arm.

If there was ever anything to the deal—and it's known now it did get as far as the talking stage—the whole thing was colder today than last night's mashed potatoes, all because Van's fireballing salary wing has found more "cousins" among National League batters so far this spring than there are in the Smith family.

RICKEY AT EASE

And Branch Rickey, who might have been cooked in his own stew (remember Dizzy Dean) was breathing a huge sigh of relief that he still has mauler Medwick and doesn't have to worrk about the ifs and whens of Mungo's flinging.

Yesterday was the day the deal was supposed to reach its head, but when Van dropped his third straight decision, losing a 10-3 affair to the come-backing Cincinnati Reds, you didn't need a crystal ball to tell you how matters stood.

He gave up eight runs in his fourinning trick on the mound, and, although all were unearned, you couldn't miss seeing those four hits in the first inning whistle past his ears and rattle off the fences as the rude Reds played ring-around-a-rosey on the base paths.

YET TO WIN GAME

From what he has shown this season, Mungo, like Dean, can no longer be ranked with Carl Hubbell on the pitching "big three." In four starts, Van has gone the route only once. He has yet to win his first game. He has been clubbed for 30 hits and 16 runs in 24 innings. True, he has had little fielding support behind him, but that hasn't made the temperamental tartar look any better.

All in all, it begins to appear as though Larry MacPhail will have to stick by his statement that Mungo won't be sold. The way Van's been going, Larry the Houdini wouldn't have any other choice. On a comparison of their performances, a couple of Mungos, and one of these beautiful green-and-gold Dodger ushers to boot, wouldn't be worth the batting Dynamite Ducky-Wucky can explode.

Harvard Crew Favored In Quad Race

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7 (AP)—The Crimson sweepswingers of Harvard ruled favorites over Princeton, Syracuse and Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the renewal of the Compton Cup regatta on Lake Carnegie today.

Tom Rolls' veteran boatmen were expected to have too much power for their principal adversaries, Princeton, although the Tigers have improved considerably since their pull against the Navy oarsmen.

Some observers look for Syracuse's green crew to make the going tough for Princeton off the Orangemen's showing against Cornell and Navy a week ago, even though at that time they finished last.

The varsity race, at the Henley distance of one mile and five-sixteenths, will be rowed at 6:30 p.m. (EDT).

There will be a Princeton-M. I. T. freshman duel at 5 p. m., and a Princeton-M. I. T. 150-pound race at 5:30 p. m.

CORNELL CHECKED

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Columbia handed Cornell its first defeat of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League season and dropped the Big Red out of first place with a 5-3 victory at Baker Field.

Fighting Fox Favored

'And the Fox Will Make It Three in a Row'

Wilson, That's All.—Dave Wilson points to the finishes of the '36 and '37 Kentucky Derbies, with Bold Venture and War Admiral winning. He picked both. Fighting Fox is his choice today in the Blue Grass classic which will be run before 60,000 at the famous Churchill Downs track. Dauber is his choice for second place and Bull Lea for third. The latter, Wilson says, is liable to be the "surprise package" of the race. Wilson for years has been the leading handicapper in the New England sector. During the winter he follows the bangtails through Maryland, West Virginia and Florida.

Runyon Picks Bull Lea

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7 (INS) — Lugging bankrolls a greyhound couldn't hurdle, trainloads of excited New Yorkers were pouring into Louisville today, all eager to bet on Fighting Fox in the Kentucky Derby this afternoon.

A field of ten horses will go to the post, the smallest band to compete for the stake of $50,000 added in years.

TRACK FAST

We think Bull Lea will win, with Menow second and Fighting Fox third.

The weather prediction was fair, which means a fast track.

The withdrawal of Stagehand was a terrific disappointment to a crowd of Californians who came in hoping to see the winner of the Santa Anita Derby and the Santa Anita Handicap repeat his triumph here. In fact, everybody that loves a horse race was disappointed.

A lot of Missourians have come in whooping it up for Lawrin, the Missouri bred horse owned by H. M. Woolf of Kansas City.

ELOOTO, 30 to 1

Elooto is a surprise entry in the Derby. The surprise is that his owner, Mrs. M. E. O'Toole, of Chicago, is willing to pay the $500 starting fee on no more than Elooto has shown to date.

This is also true of Bart Friend's Co-Sport, a horse which did a lot of racing in Florida last winter.

However, there have been big upsets in a lot of great stakes, and any horse that has four legs, and keeps running always has some sort of a chance.
